Editorially speaking

We noted recently reading a Federal Department of Public Works, "Invitation to Tender", on a new wharf in Northern Newfoundland that the community was located in Newfoundland and Labrador. This is the first time we have noticed the Ottawa authorities use this designation. According to the Terms of Union signed in 1949, "Newfoundland" became the 10th Province of Canada and this section of the terms has not been changed. In that the writer was involved in a minor way, with the introduction of Newfoundland and Labrador, possibly a short review of the events and the present status quo may be of interest.

During a speech in the House of Assembly in 1964 the writer suggested the addition of Labrador to Newfoundland on vehicle license plates would help publicize the fact that Labrador, although it is within the boundaries was a very large, mainland, land mass, separated from the Island part of the Province. One of the reasons for suggesting this was the almost universal ignorance of Canadians to the actual status of Labrador. In the early sixties it had been referred to as part of the Northwest Territories, part of New Quebec, and a separate Territory. It was the writer's thinking that by advertising Labrador as part of the Province of Newfoundland we would help correct these errors.

Later that same year the Government introduced legislation officially (Provincially) changing the name to Newfoundland and Labrador. No effort was made at that time, or to our knowledge, since, to request a name change on the Federal level, which we understand would mean amending the British North America Act. As of 1 Jan., 1965, all vehicle license plates carried the wording Newfoundland and Labrador. And about the same time all Provincial Government stationery, advertising, releases, etc., also changed. In 1966 the Dept. of Labrador Affairs was established as a separate department of the Provincial Government.

From the outset there was opposition to Newfoundland and Labrador, even in Labrador. However it was felt this would soon disappear, but the opposite seemed to be the case. During the P.C. leadership convention in May a resolution was introduced to have the name revert to Newfoundland only.

It is our opinion that the people of Labrador are the decision makers in this case and no change should be made until a legal plebiscite is conducted.

Aurora feels a local opinion poll may help resolve this matter.

Here 'n' There

DOWN WITH GUIDED — INES: With deepest regrets, a national association with 40,000 members announced last month it is raising individual membership fees to $4.00 from $3.00, a 33% jump. The group carefully points out that it has been "trying for more than five years to hold the price line." And it reasons that since members received a bi-monthly magazine, "in essence it is the price of the magazine which will go up." The tinge of embarrassment contained in the announcement is easily explained, the group is the Consumers' Association of Canada.

THE LUNCH CRUNCH: Coming from Montreal, where Canada finds its most artful practitioners of the extended lunch, the news from the Board of Trade seemed a depressing sign of the times. The board said a survey of members showed "a considerable interest in a self-service type of luncheon facility as an alternative to the more extensive meal and bar service" now found in the board's two club dining rooms. The answer was a "lunch bar" which started early this month at Commerce House. There, the economy minded business, can now enjoy soup, a sandwich, coffee and dessert for as low as $1.05, with no tax or service charge.

SYDNEY STEEL: Sydney Steel Corp. of Sydney, N.S., has received $15.5 million in regional incentive grants from the federal government toward a $94 million expansion program. Modernization of existing equipment will cost $36 million and $23 million will go toward installing production equipment for vacuum de-gassed steel and double length rails. Further expansion to provide continuous casting facilities will cost $25 million. Five

A man has 5-1/2 hours at his disposal. How far can he drive his car out of town at 55 miles an hour and without loss of time return by bus at 42 miles an hour?

ANSWER

130.98 (minus) miles. Divide the sum of 55 and 42 into the product of 55, 42 and 5.5.

open-hearth furnaces will be replaced by two basic oxygen furnaces, to be ready in 1973. The rail process would be completed in 1972 and the vacuum de-gassing process in 1971.

QUEBECERS RUN CANADA: An angry Premier W.A.C. Bennett says Canada is being run by "a Quebec government". Mr. Bennett, said in an interview after he officially opened the Yellowhead Highway linking British Columbia and Alberta. "We haven't got a Canadian government, its a Quebec Government", he said. Elaborating, he said three men, "all Quebecers", run the federal government. He said they are Prime Minister Trudeau, State secretary Gerard Pelletier and Regional Development Minister Jean Marchand.

BOWATERS APPOINTMENT: Eric J. Fitzgerald, engineer assistant at Bowaters Newfoundland Ltd., has been appointed paper mill maintenance co-ordinator, succeeding John C. Lee who was earlier appointed mechanical superintendent. Many of the "old timers" will probably remember John Lee who worked in this area in the early 60s.

AIR CONTROL FOR MOISE: The transport departments hopes to install the first units of a new air traffic control radar system at Moise, Que., and Sydney, N.S., by April or May, 1971, a department spokesman said earlier this month. A $1.4 million contract has been given to Cutler-Hammer Inc. of Deer Park, N.Y. to develop the units. The system will probably be extended to other parts of the country. The system's purpose is to provide a more complete picture of aircraft flights by linking radar units at remote areas to main control centres by land telephone lines. The Moise and Sydney installations will be joined to Moncton control centre which handles arrival and departure of overflying aircraft from both Canada and the United States. The system would give more help to air traffic controllers in guiding aircraft safely to their destinations. It would also provide earlier warning of aircraft travelling on conflicting paths.

DOWN THE HATCH: Not surprisingly, the stock market slump has helped create other forms of investment. Brigadoon Scotch Distributors Ltd., a U.S. whisky broker, has just started selling scotch whisky warehouse receipts in Ontario with a guarantee that every mature gallon of whisky can be exchanged for two raw gallons after four years. "It is clear that drinking is on the increase," says Mr. G. White, a Brigadoon executive, in a terse forecast that few, except pot smokers, would question. Investors can sell their warehouse receipts on the open market at any time they like the price. If they do not, they have the option of holding on and accepting Brigadoon's two-for-one offer. The raw whisky market is just picking up from a bleak spell that started in the mid-1960s when the over-production upset prices. Brigadoon believes that the distillers and the U.K. government have learned their lesson. The price of an original proof gallon of blended raw whisky dropped from $2.83 in 1965 to $2.27 before edging back to $2.30 this spring. Four year whisky, at $3.67 a gallon, is also on the rise but still well below its 1966 peak of $5.56.

ANTI-POLLUTION: Another handsome export order is coming for the chemical industry, thanks to the anti-pollution drive. The bulk of the 2,300 tons of sulphuric acid to be produced daily by International Nickel Co., at Coffey Cliff, Ont., will go to the U.S. and Europe. The $20 million plant is being built as part of Inco's environmental-control program, using sulphur dioxide from Inco's smelter gases. It will be managed by Canadian Ind. Ltd., which handled the design, and will be the lowest cost and one of the largest acid-producing units in the world.

meeting held in Corner Brook

The Provincial Apprenticeship Board held its 99th meeting in Corner Brook on 20 and 21 August, 1970. The Board met with Trade Advisory Committees in the area and also toured the Bowater Pulp and Paper Mill to get a first hand look at the training programmes.

The Board consists of a Chairman, Dr. S.J. Carew, Master of Paton College, Memorial University.

There are two employer representatives — Mr. W.W. Cossitt, Managing Director of Provincial Constructors, and Mr. G.R. Horwood, Managing Director of Horwood Lumber Company in St. John's. Mr. F.L. Rowsell, Director of Personnel and Training with Bowaters is the alternate employer representative on the Board.

There are also two employee representatives on the Board — Mr. Esau Thoms, General Chairman, Brotherhood of Railway, Airline and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employees, and Mr. Jack Scott, an Electrician with Price Newfoundland Limited. Mr. Edward Ludlow is the alternate employee representative and is employed with Wabush Mines Limited in Labrador.

The Department of Education is represented on the Board by Mr. W.J. May, Director of Technical and Vocational Education.

AURORA, LABRADOR, AUGUST 26, 1970 — 5

The Department of Labour is represented by Mr. C.J. Carter, Director of Apprenticeship. Mr. Gordon C. Wells of the Department of Labour Apprenticeship Staff is Secretary to the Board.

The Board met at the Department of Labour, Sir Richard Squires Building, Corner Brook.

The 100th meeting of the Board will be held in St. John's in September.

lighter side

NO RELIEF: The travelling salesman, caught in a thunderstorm, was invited to spend the night at the farmhouse sharing the bed of the farmer's young son. Just before putting out the light the salesman saw the young boy kneeling beside the bed. A guilty feeling passed over him as he realized he hadn't said his prayers for years. Hopping out he knelt down on the other side of the bed. "What are you doing?" asked the boy. "I'm doing the same as you, my friend," answered the salesman, reverently. "You are. Well you better not let mom catch you, the pot is on this side of the bed."

BALD: The only advantage of being bald is that you are the first to know when it starts raining.

BELIEVE WHAT YOU READ: Despite a sign in Lake Success, New York, which read, "This home is protected by an electronic device tied to the police station," a burglar smashed a pane of glass and broke in. After being arrested for his attempted burglary, the suspect was asked why he ignored the sign, written in plain English, and he replied, "Do you believe everything you read?"

PROBLEM: "Thank you for curing my nymphomania, doctor," said the sweet young thing to her psychiatrist. "Now how do I get back the three hundred keys to my apartment?"

THE BIBLE: The story is told of the late, fabulous stuttering comedian, Joe Frisco. He checked into a hotel in New York and that night his phone rang and a voice said, "This is the room clerk, Mr. Frisco, do you have a girl in your room?" Frisco mumbled, "Why, y-y-yes I have, will you send up another bible?"

VIRILE: In Los Angeles, California, an armed robber in his mid-30s made the mistake of tangling with the 82 year old owner of a plumbing supply shop. After the robber pulled a gun and demanded that he turn over all of his money or be killed, the spry old fellow delivered a free-style karate chop to the bandit's body, grabbed the gun and whacked the intruder over the head with it.

THE MANNEQUIN: The police rookie in Vancouver, knew something was amiss when he spotted a large hole in the display window. Then he looked at the mannequins, especially at one wearing slacks and a sweater and crouching. Suddenly the mannequin came alive and leaped out the hole in the window, and was promptly arrested on burglary charges. The mannequin turned out to be a 19 year old girl.

SAVED HIS WALLET: A man in Fort Wayne, Indiana, wasn't about to give his wallet to a thug who accosted him and demanded all of his money. The two grappled and the thug grabbed the end of the man's nose in his teeth. The man lost the end of his nose, but saved his wallet.

THE MINI: A lady judge in Los Angeles, Joan Dempsey, whose wearing of mini skirts is criticized by fellow judges: "I don't criticize their attire, I don't point out that some of them wear food on their clothing."

THE BRAS: A London bra manufacturer, commenting on the peek-aboo fashion, a bra-less see-through blouse: "We need all the support we can get just now."

THE REAR: A ham actor "at liberty" got work with a travelling carnival. His job was to hold his head through a piece of canvas while people threw baseballs at him.

"Man, it was tough," he related to a friend afterward. "I guess those baseballs really hurt when they hit," sympathized the friend. "No," said the actor, "it wasn't the baseballs that bothered me so much. What got me was the crowd throwing darts at me from behind."

Recent visitors to Labrador City were Grant and Audrey Hiscock. The family were truly "pioneers" to the area, being amongst the first permanent residents. Grant is presently Town Manager of Deer Lake. Trust you enjoyed your brief stay.

A speedy recovery goes out to Gerry Fowler who is presently hospitalized at Montreal General Hospital. Gerry was recently transferred from Captain Jackman Memorial to Montreal General for further treatment.

Yes it was LEM Rowe, we reported last week, as the father of a new baby boy!

Keough announced

CROWN LANDS FOR CANADIANS ONLY: Foreigners will no longer be able to acquire title to Crown land in British Columbia as a result of recent legislation. The legislation completely overhauls a law which has been on the statute books since 1888 and has been amended only slightly since.

Under the amended law, anyone will be able to lease Crown land, but only Canadians will have the right to proceed to title under a lease-develop-purchase plan. A person or company will be able to lease Crown land, develop it according to specifications and purchase it if government standards are complied with, but this authority will be limited to Canadians.

The revised legislation also gives the government authority to prohibit specific land uses in certain designated areas. At present, the government has no control over use of land. For example, the Department of Health can post warnings that certain beaches are unsafe for swimming, but it cannot prohibit their use for that or other purpose. The legislation is similar to a law in force in Alberta for some years, although it is less restrictive. It does not affect Canadians or Canadian residents as far as ownership is concerned, although Canadians, as well as others, will be subject to regulations that may be applied by the government, such as prohibition of use of beaches for various reasons including pollution control.

Spokesmen for the Department of Lands report that public reaction has been generally favourable to the new legislation. The law does not affect private land transactions. For instance, the owner of property purchased from the government by a Canadian citizen may be sold by him to a foreigner. Provision is made for prohibition of use of crown land under certain conditions and this would have general application. For instance, the government would have authority to prohibit the use of waterfront property by hippie colonies under certain conditions if the intended use was not in conformity with established standards. Crown land waterfront property can be acquired only by leasehold.

The government has been developing a lease-develop-purchase plan or some time and the purpose of this is in part to prevent speculation by people who have no intention to develop the property but plan to hold it for speculative purposes.

The new legislation will affect U.S. and other foreign citizens wishing to purchase Crown land on the Gulf of Georgia Islands, for instance, or who have obtained acreage in the Peace River farming areas. They may lease the land, but cannot obtain full title unless they are Canadian citizens, and if they wish to retain the lease indefinitely they must submit for approval plans showing their intended use of land.

WHAT WILL A NICKLE BUY? In these inflationary times where can you still have a suit made to order for the fabulous sum of $16.76? For that matter where can you have your car brakes relined for $1.76? The answer is at your friendly, discount Canadian penitentiary, providing you happen to be a penitentiary officer.

The prices, suggest Auditor General Henderson in his latest catalogue of government ills, do seem a bit low even when you consider that captive inmate labor can still be had for something between 35c and 65c a day. The officers, through long-standing practice, are permitted to have articles for their own use manufactured or repaired in the prison shops. They can purchase materials at cost plus a handling charge of 10%. The real saving, however, is in labor for which they pay five cents an hour. The rate was struck in 1938 when inmates were actually paid five cents per day. As long ago as 1964, the Auditor General advised the penitentiary service that some review of labor costs might be in order but so far no change has been made.

All employers are being asked these days, under the Prices & Incomes Commission voluntary restraint program, to keep their price increases below their cost increases. But in this case, the inmates should get a substantial raise to help them support their families or build a nest egg. The government should hike its prices even more than the cost increase, to help pay for the prisons.

IS THE PANTSUIT A BUSINESS SUIT? If a certain fashion trend continues, a lot of bosses will soon have to face up to one of those damned-if-you-do-damned-if-you-don't questions: Should women wear pantsuits in the office? The problem isn't causing major concern during summer, but according to 20 companies polled, there are indications that a definite policy will be formed by autumn.

Highlights of the findings: Most companies and government departments do not have a "pants" policy because only a very small minority of their girls have worn pantsuits to the office.

The employer has the last word on what his staff wears; no law exists to protect the employee if fired due to appearance. Most executives are willing to accept pant outfits if they become the prevailing style.

Big companies tend to shy away from an overall policy ruling, preferring to leave the problem to department supervisors. When the lines are drawn, they're mostly between fashionable wear in good taste; pants with dresses or long sweaters; vs the "ordinary" pants (that is, garments fit for Saturday's housecleaning).

Not surprisingly, the most liberal attitude is found in "creative" departments; and companies, such as ad agencies and film production houses. Regionally, Ontario and Quebec seem most liberal; primarily because the trend started in these two provinces, and as yet, has not been a noticeable trend in east and west.

Even though it is helping to promote the trend, the Robert Simpson Co. prefers that its saleswomen stick to dresses and suits in all but the swinging fashion departments.

Said one executive of Simpsons: "We have no policy but if someone did wear pants or nonsuitable clothing it would be suggested to that person that perhaps it not be worn again."

THE U.S.S.R.: Attitudes apparently haven't changed much in the Soviet Union. There's a story going the rounds in Montreal about the Scottish engineer being shown through the engine room of the Soviet passenger liner Alexandr Pushkin. "How many revolutions?" asked the Scotsman, laconically. "In Russia," replied his guide, "we only have one revolution."

GETTING THE MAIL THRU: There is always a silver lining. Air Canada reports that as a result of the rotating strikes and slowdowns in the postal system, the volume of air express usage has "increased dramatically." The airline noted with a certain satisfaction that it is handling the rush with no difficulty. The disruptions have also brought more clients than they can accommodate to the doors of the private delivery companies in Canada. Private services are restricted by law to moving second, and third class mail, but they are handling some first class matter in the belief that the government, as it has before, will turn a blind eye during a postal strike.

SYMBOLISM: The Celanese Fabrics Division of Chemcell Ltd., Canada's largest producer of synthetic textiles, will soon be supplying apparel makers with colored "care labels" for clothing, which indicate by a system of symbols how the garment should be washed, dried, bleached, and the like. The company is making the move voluntarily, in preference to having the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs eventually imposing the symbol system. The one thing concerning industry people is whether the department is going to mount a sufficiently intensive campaign to teach consumers what the symbols mean. The department says only that Mr. Ron Basford will be talking about that in the fall, shortly before the first symbols appear in the stores. There is no doubt a campaign is needed.

HOCKEY: The Backstrom Hockey School was cancelled because of the non-availability of Ralph. Seems to us that with an earlier decision, a substitute National Hockey League star could have been obtained. Understand there are some "mighty disappointed" lads in the area.

SOCCER: It looks as if the local team will not be participating in the Provincial Championship. Evidently they were not successful in obtaining a revised play-off schedule. Tentative plans now call for a visit to Sept Iles over the Labor Day weekend.

Minister explains unions' authority

In view of the prominence of Unions in the news, the public might find it helpful to be informed about how a Union gets its authority to represent employees in negotiations with employers.

A Union may apply to the Newfoundland Labour Relations Board for certification as bargaining agent for the employees in a Union, provided that Union has a majority of the employees as members in good standing.

Where there is no collective agreement in effect, the application for certification may be made at anytime.

Where there is a collective agreement in effect, the application may be made after 10 months of the term of the agreement have expired.

Under certain circumstances, a Union may acquire bargaining rights without going through the formalities of certification. These circumstances are limited to the cases where an employer voluntarily accepts a Union as a bargaining agent and enters into a collective agreement with that Union.

There are exceptions to the above, but to state them all would make it extremely complicated. Anyone wanting further information can get it from the Chief Executive Officer of the Board in the Department of Labour at Confederation Building, St. John's.

The Minister of Labour, W.J. Keough, stated that Unions certified by the Newfoundland Labour Relations Board obtain the following rights under The Labour Relations Act:

1. The right to require an employer to deduct union dues from the wages of an employee on his written assignment.
2. The right to require an employer to commence collective bargaining. (The employer also gets the right to require the Union to commence collective bargaining.)
3. Access to the conciliation officer and conciliation board services of his department without further proof of bargaining rights.

A stationery store bought a supply of calendars, spending $13.92 altogether. If the store received 34 calendars fewer than the number of cents paid for each calendar, what was the cost of each calendar?

ANSWER

58 cents each. Let X equal number of calendars bought. Then  $1392x$  equals cost of each calendar. Form equation:  $1392/x$  equal X plus 34. Solve for X, the number of calendars bought, and add 34 to this result for the price of each.

FRANCE (FINE FOOD & FINE WINES): I'm convinced that anyone who says wine selection is a simple matter should be tied to a stake in the middle of the Champs Elyees during rush hour. To select and enjoy a good wine, one should know a little about its making. Burgundy is a pleasant place to start learning. It's a large region southeast of Paris, with rolling hills, beautiful streams and many small towns.

The Burgundians have been making wine for 1,600 years. To them, it is an art and they hoot at anyone who labels it a science. While there are six different districts, each with its own wine speciality, the most renowned of all Burgundy wines (Bourgogne) come from the Cote de Nuits area. Add to this the Cote de Beaune, where wines have equal flavour but are more delicate, and its extension, the Cote de Chalon, and you find the best growing area of Burgundy. This is a narrow strip of hillside land swinging in a gently flowing arc for about 30 miles. It starts a few kilometers southwest of the little town of Buxy and ends just outside middle sized Dijon. Beaune, in the middle of that arc and 180 miles from Paris, can rightfully be called the wine capital of Burgundy. In the wine museum you learn that the good wine regions of the world are California, France, Australia, Argentina, Chile and South Africa. That corks are inserted by being wetted, squeezed and jammed into the bottle tops. That Chambertin is considered the best red wine by local residents Meursault, the finest of the whites.

Here are a few more facts to help in wine selection: Broadly, there are three kinds of wine grown in France; vin ordinaire, or ordinary wine, which is the least expensive and has the least distinctive qualities; appellation controlee; and grand cru, with "cru" meaning growth. The latter two terms can be designated only by government wine experts. Appellation controlee means the wine may carry the name of the vineyard where the grapes are grown, thus guaranteeing the wine's place of origin. Appellation d'origine also guarantees place of origin, and signifies more control in the grape growing and wine making. When a wine is the best that a certain vineyard can produce, the government permits the designation, grand cru or, alternately, premier cru.

Wines vary more from year to year than from vineyard to vineyard. Wine made from grapes grown in a second class vineyard in one year may be far superior to wines produced during a poor year in a first class vineyard. That is why the year and the place of origin are so significant.

To be a connoisseur forget the rose wine. The french generally don't consider them wines at all. Rightfully so, because the making involves arresting the fermentation process, which stops wine from developing to its full flavor.

Choose instead a red or white. As a rough guide, white wine goes with fish, poultry and lighter foods. Red wines go best with beef and strong-tasting foods. Experience will show you which wine you prefer with different foods.

Don't get trapped into believing that age determines the quality of the wine. Red wines reach their peak in about seven years, hold it from 10 to 20 more, then begin to lose some qualities. White wines reach their peak after three years, hold it for maybe 10 more, their start to drift downhill. While some wineries keep a few bottles for 50 or 100 years and open them on special occasions, this is merely a grand gesture. Age has not enhanced either their flavor or taste. Burgundy is probably as well known for its fine food as for its wines. This is to be expected because restaurants that survive in an area that pays enormous respect to wines must prepare the natural accomplishments; splendid food. Burgundians claim theirs is the finest in all France.

Their inns are superb too. One of the finest is in the small town of Avalon, 80 miles from Beaune. It is called Hostelleries de la Poste, and has only 40 rooms, so reservations must be made in advance. The same rule applies to its restaurant, which is also small, also superb. The beds swallow you and there is an enormous respect for peace and solitude. No garbage cans rattle at 7.00 a.m. no chambermaids knock at your door before 9.30. You leave well fed and rested. Passing through Beaune, try Kir, a drink made of dry wine Burgundy wine (Bourgogne Aligote is recommended most) and creme de cassis, an European liquer made from black currants. Nearby Dijon makes the best.

Other specialities in Burgundy are crayfish and snails, coq au vin, cheeses and cheesecake, and fruit pies flavored with the cassis liquer.

Good wines, good food, good lodgings, try Burgundy, France.

New information delays history

Several years ago the Government of Newfoundland ordered the compilation of the History of the Labour Movement in Newfoundland and Labrador.

The Institute of Social and Economic Research of Memorial University of Newfoundland undertook this work on the Government's behalf.

This project is being carried out under the direction of Professor Rolf G. Hattenhauer, Head of the Commerce Department, Memorial University of Newfoundland. Professor Hattenhauer will write the History as soon as the research data has been collected and assimilated.

It was originally estimated that this project, which commenced in 1967, would be completed by the end of 1970. Discovery of new sources of information however has caused a delay of approximately one year in its completion date.

It is estimated that the total cost of the project will be $12,000 and will be underwritten by the Government. The final installment was recently approved by the House of Assembly when the Department of Labour estimates were before the House.

Caribou season is open

The hunting season for the Western Labrador caribou herd has been announced by W.R. Callahan, Minister of Mines, Agriculture and Resources.

Hunting in the area of Churchill Falls and west began on August 24 and must finish on November 28. The bag limit is one stag for which proof of sex is required; either the entire head or the lower jawbone should be sent to the Newfoundland Wildlife Service, Building 810, Pleasantville, St. John's.

The quota of three hundred licences are being sold on a "first come, first served" basis. One hundred and seventy-five of these licences already have been sold.

If some of your more heavily-loaded dresser drawers are difficult to slide in and out, you can ease the situation with a few ordinary thumb tacks. Another big help is a little wax rubbed along the bottoms of the drawers where they contact the tacks. - (Gene Von)

What have we gained down through the ages?

by Lawrence Jacobs

Throughout history, each generation has been remembered for its ability to do something better than the preceding generation and throughout the ages this ability has resulted in the discovery of new lands, the invention of things which have made man's work easier and simpler, the creation of new techniques and the formation of new ideas and philosophies. These new ideas and philosophies have spread over certain periods of time which today are referred to as 'ages' such as 'the Age of Reason', 'the Age of Voltaire' and 'the Age of Louis XIV.' The people who lived during the span of some specific age were generally of the same belief, although there always were the reformers, or, as some believed, people who lived before their time. However, their beliefs and opinions usually dominated the minds of later generations causing them to be remembered as great philosophers and scientists.

Charles Darwin is a good example of this. After years of experimentation and research resulted in his book 'The Origin of Species', he was ridiculed by the majority of the day who obviously could not cast their religious views aside and believe such a ridiculous theory as Darwin had assumed. However, today Darwin's theory of evolution, along with those of the many evolutionists who succeeded him, is taught in every school, college and university on the continent. In short, Darwin's beliefs have now become the beliefs of this generation and he has been classified as a great scientist and evolutionist.

Numerous similar examples can be found from the pages of history which further exemplify the fact that men tend to be different; that each generation improves on or degenerates from the preceding and that the discoveries and inventions of one generation has a great effect on succeeding generations. (Let's not forget then that we are definitely affected by the past). We could probably agree with the evolutionist and call this improvement or progress (when it occurs) educational progress which agrees with their theory that man is still in a continuous state of development. This, unfortunately, is not always so (as mentioned above, degeneration sometimes takes place) since many of the discoveries and inventions made by man have been completely without advantage but instead have caused and are still today causing much harm to man. The invention of the pesticide DDT is a good example. For many years it has been produced and used to destroy insects but it is only recently that it has been learned that DDT is very harmful to man and his food chain.

The frantic space race is another example or it appears to be at present. No real good has come from this endeavour up to now, apart from the satellites which orbit the earth just above our atmosphere assisting with communications and weather forecasting. However, the millions spent to send men to the moon and take pictures of Mars have failed to be of any practical benefit to man. It's not known for certain whether or not some future generation will benefit from the information obtained but all present knowledge would have us believe that the benefits will be small and far advanced into the future.

We still read about the Industrial Revolution, the Renaissance and other great periods in history when knowledge took a great leap forward. During some of these periods great changes took place which still affect us today and will continue to affect us unless something is done fast. For example — the Industrial Revolution was beneficial to man but it should have been controlled. Instead it was allowed to monsterize until today it practically dominates our environment. We live in a mechanized society where machinery does everything with the press of a button, except cleaning up the smog and pollutants which industry has been continuously spewing around ever since the Industrial Revolution began.

This then is what we have inherited from preceding generations. We were born with the trend of today already in progress. There was nothing we could do to prevent such from beginning but there are many steps we can take to ease the danger which it presents to man. Yet we have neglected to do such. Only recently has any serious attention been given to the fact that our earth is being quickly polluted with waste.

What of the present generation? What are we doing today that places the existence of man in grave danger? In a recent edition of Weekend Magazine, Dr. Isaac Asimov says that man is a danger to himself and to all life on earth. He explains that as the population of man increases, other forms of life tend to decrease. This will eventually leave less and less food for man. Our cities and towns are already congested and at the present rate of growth, our earth will soon be intolerably congested with people.

We may possibly be able to pass the blame to preceding generations (but that will not help any) for some of the pollution caused by industry, (since the Industrial Revolution took place before our time) and in an indirect way for the millions being spent on the space program (preceding generations showed interest in the stars and space) but for the numerous ills of this present generation such as the population explosion, the continuation of water and air pollution, the increase of dangerous machines which continually jeopardize the life of man and other things which endanger all life on this planet, we in this present time must shoulder the blame and if we fail to change the trend and solve those problems which we presently face, we shall probably be known as the 'Age that Failed' and caused the destruction of all life.

Coming to the O'BRIEN HALL. Nightly 7 thru 13 Sept.

"THE SECOND TIME AROUND"

Admission $1.00 per person. Fri. - Sat. $1.50 per person.

Small game seasons announced by dept.

The dates for the small game seasons have been announced by W.R. Callahan, Minister of Mines, Agriculture and Resources.

On the Island of Newfoundland, the ptarmigan (partridge) and ruffed grouse seasons will open on September 19 and close on November 28, 1970; whereas in Labrador they will open on October 1 and close on April 30, 1971. There will also be a brief open season for ptarmigan on Brunette Island in Fortune Bay from October 1 to October 10, 1970. The seasonal bag limit for ptarmigan will be 50 per hunter in all areas and for ruffed grouse will be 25 per hunter.

There is no open season on the Island of Newfoundland for spruce grouse but Labrador sportsmen may hunt these birds from October 1 to April 30, 1971 and there is no bag limit for this species.

Hunters of these three game birds are reminded that they should send the wing and tail feathers to the Newfoundland Wildlife Service, Building 810, Pleasantville, St. John's. They are used to determine the sex and age structure of the populations.

Snowshoe hare (rabbits) can be shot on the Avalon Peninsula north and east of the Witless Bay Line from October 1 to February 27, 1971 and on the remainder of the Island from October 1 to December 31, 1970. They can be snared throughout the entire Island, however, from October 1 to March 15, 1971. In Labrador this species may be shot or snared from October 1 to March 31, 1971 in all areas. There is no bag limit for them.

The Arctic Hare is fair game for shooting or snaring in Labrador from October 1 to March 31, 1971 but on insular Newfoundland there is no open season on this animal. Like Snowshoe Hare, Arctic Hare have no bag limit.

Newfoundland residents will have to pay $2.00 for a game bird licence while non-residents will have to pay $5.00. A rabbit licence will cost a resident $1.00 and a non-resident $5.00. All licences may be purchased from licence vendors around the Province or from the Department of Mines, Agriculture and Resources, Confederation Building, St. John's.

Scanning the Market

By C.S. DEVINE

In spite of recent improvement, this analyst doubts the decline is over. "The action of the stock market last week indicated a change in investor sentiment from one of gloom and despair to cautious optimism. However, stocks vs. fixed-income securities are not yet attractive. It is possible, though, that looking back six or nine months hence, present values may prove to have been reasonable. This will only occur provided interest rates decline substantially from present levels.

One doubts that the bear market has run its full course. There is still ample evidence of corporate and other liquidity problems. Many weak situations exist that have yet to be repaired and bankruptcies of course will be the result in some situations. Irrespective of the foregoing, we are in "bargain hunting country" and modest commitments should be made in equities that are obviously underpriced, especially during periods of stress when bids are few or lacking altogether and there is evidence of forced selling.

The bond market has bottomed out and this is a result of continuing monetary restraint. Price increases are moderating and so is the stance of monetary authorities. Surely high grade bonds, especially the extendables and retractables available, must be attractive. The bear market that began in December, 1968, has been the longest and severest in more than 20 years and can only be described as a "crash". Meanwhile, the objective investor should remember that conditions are rarely as bad as they seem (or, for that matter, as good.)"

SAGGING PROFITS BOTTOMING OUT: The 18 month declining trend in U.S. corporate profits appears to be bottoming out, according to economists at First National City Bank of New York.

In a recent economic letter, the bank said a general rebound has been programmed into the U.S. economy by the Federal Reserve Board's switch to "a moderately expansive monetary policy last winter." The economists said they don't anticipate strong recovery until early 1971. However, they add that corporate profits are unusually sensitive to stirrings of recovery in the economy, changing direction a quarter or more before business in general.

The bank said a survey of second quarter profits for 1,404 companies "provides hope that a turnabout is at hand." When all the statistics are in, the bank said, "there is a chance that profits will prove to have bottomed out in the first quarter of 1970." During the second quarter, corporate profits after taxes continued to lag behind the corresponding 1969 period by 6% on the average, the survey showed. This compared with a year to date decline of 8% for the same companies in the first quarter. The economist credited cost cutting efforts, which are beginning to pay off, for corporations improving their profit margins.

LATIN RISKS: Any company operating in Latin America is generally considered a high risk investment. But risks vary. Venezuela, for example, has the strongest economy in South America and the fourth most stable currency in the world.

"There are political risks but there is also potential," says one analyst who feels that Canadian International Power Ltd., which earns 65% of its revenues in Venezuela, is undervalued. CIP earned $4.55 a share last year compared to $4.17 in 1968. Its stock presently trades for about $25.00 or five times estimated 1970 earnings of $5.00. Apparently investors value it no more highly than companies in seemingly riskier areas.

On the local scene

Mr. Graham "Galloping Gourmet" Kerr, we saw your show on color TV on several occasions and thoroughly enjoyed it. But Graham really, on radio at 7:30 a.m., preparing "barbecued currie" is really "a bit much", especially to the listener who may have been partying the night before. How about it C.F.G.B.? Move up the time of this show about 12 hours.

Aurora has been advised by the RCMP they have in their possession three bicycles plus assorted summer toys, etc. Persons missing such items may contact the Labrador City Detachment, Town Hall, to reclaim lost articles.

This week we say welcome to our school teachers. Welcome back to those who taught here last year and prior years and a very special hello to those teaching in Labrador

City-Wabush for the first time. We trust you have a successful, rewarding, enjoyable, school year.

EASTERN PROVINCIAL AIRWAYS has just released its Sept. - Oct. '70 schedule. Effective 1 September flights will depart Wabush 2:40 p.m. daily, Monday thru Saturday, with stops at Churchill Falls, Goose Bay, Deer Lake, Gander, arriving St. John's 8:30 p.m.

Incoming flights will originate St. John's, 7:00 a.m. with the same stops, and arrive Wabush 10:00 a.m.

According to our social calendar it seems possible to view a movie free, six nights a week and to play everybody's favorite game of chance five nights a week. But dancing (unless a special event) is limited to four nights weekly. Our communities must be growing old!

-----
Work is presently underway in Labrador City to service 85 lots with water and sewage. The area selected is the old "Legion Road" which will soon disappear. Nothing decided, as yet, on a definite date for actual construction.

This week we say farewell to two old friends: Jack Dunkin, and Wally Kerr. Jack was closely associated with Curling, Church, and school activities, during his 10 year stay in this area. Bon voyage to Jack, Gloria, and family. Wally was one of the driving forces behind Minor League Hockey, in the area. Wally and family will be taking up residence near Cornwall, Ont.
