MORE CENSUS FIGURES: Additional statistics for Newfoundland were recently released. One of the more interesting preliminary figures showed Grand Falls with a population of 7,659 - this is 18 more than first count for Labrador City. Between 1966 and 1971 Corner Brook's population decreased 1,187 to 25,929. Another decrease was recorded at Stephenville Crossing which dropped 323 to 2,110. Bonavista showed practically no change - 1966 it was 4,192 in 1971 it had increased to 4,217.

The population of Marystown rose to 4,982 from 1,894 but the boundaries of the town were changed during that five year period accounting in large part for the increase.

Although the counts shown in a preliminary bulletin are subject to revision, in most cases the bulletin says, the figures will be close to the final population counts.

FERMONT: More information was recently released on the new town by Quebec Cartier Mining Co. "Most northern communities have tended to be carbon copies of southern Canadian Cities with large heating systems being the only concession to climatic differences," Lewis J. Patterson, president of Quebec Cartier, said. "We are trying something quite new. Our concept is specially designed for its location 500 miles northeast of Montreal and 15 miles west of Labrador City, Nfld. It will use the best features of contemporary urban planning." Quebec Cartier is owned by United States Steel Corp. of Pittsburgh.

Canada's first iron works, established in 1736 near Trois-Rivieres, was in a village called Fermont. Desourdy Enterprises Inc. of St. Jean, Que., will manufacture more than 600 housing units.

Surveyor, Nenniger and Chenevert Inc. of Montreal is the planning and design consultant and will be responsible for supervision. H.J. O'Connell Ltd. of Montreal will prepare the site, build the roads and install underground services. Desnoyers and Schoenauer of Montreal are architects and planners working with SNC.

The windscreen structure will incorporate a specially insulated three-story and five-story apartment complex of 350 units. Connected to the apartment complex by a climate-controlled walkway will be a shopping centre, restaurant, swimming pool, arena, library and town hall. A compact street plan will minimize walking distances and houses will be sited to receive maximum sun.

It is expected the work force will reach 500 next year.

NEW AGREEMENT: Understand Union-Management Negotiations are going quite well at Sept Iles. Last week joint Unions presented their proposals and yesterday companies were scheduled to present their counter proposals. Aurora learns, that with the exception of increased Northern Allowance, demands are almost identical to U.S.W.A. requests to "Steel's Big 10" which was settled last summer (without a strike) and gave workers an average of 29 percent over three years.

TOWN & POLICE NEWS, L.C.:

Come, Follow Me

Long ago three Wise Men
Were gazing at a star
That glistened in the Heavens,
Outshining all by far.
And so the Wise Men pondered
What could its message be,
For it somehow seemed to beckon
And say, "Come, follow me!"

So they readied for a journey,
And chose their gifts so rare.
Then they climbed upon their camels,
And turned them toward the star.

Long days and nights they traveled
With trials along the way,
Until they came to Bethlehem
Where now the Christ Child lay.

And there the holy Magi
Knelt before this tiny King;
They gazed in adoration
While hearing angels sing.

And then along with shepherds
They learned the reason why
They were beckoned by a message
That came out of the sky.

And they gave it to the ages
So that all good men might be,
Just as joyfully rewarded
By the words, "Come, follow me!"

Subject: Information

Dear Sir,

For I suppose that there is not an information centre at Labrador City, I am going to ask you for general information material on your town.

If you are not possible to send me some information in form of a folder, would you please be so kind as to tell me something about your town in a letter, I mean population, airport and something in this kind.

I am 14 years old, and if you're able to bring me in touch with a Canadian boy like myself who is interested in penfriendship with me, I should thank you very much.

Thank you very much for the information. and in advance I wish you a merry Christmas and a happy new year.

The Editor
'THE AURORA'

Dear Sir:

We would like you to publish the enclosed copy of a letter we have written to Mr. Edmond Creed, President of Creeds, Toronto, in reply to public comments by him, reported by the Canadian Press and carried in many newspapers, questioning the need for protection of certain endangered spotted cat species.

Yours very truly,
Richard S. Whitaker
For Chairman
Wildlife Committee
S.P.C.A. Newfoundland
and Labrador

Mr. Edmond Creed,
312 Adelaide St.
West Toronto.

Dear Mr. Creed,
We have read the remarks

Letters to the editor attributed to you published in Canadian Press from Toronto on October 25th. We can hardly believe you intend these remarks to be taken seriously.

For instance, you say your stores use the Red Book as their guide, and go on: "All the other species on lists are on the lists of various other organizations. I question whether they have the complete scientific facts."

We do not know which other organizations you have in mind. Certainly such respected groups as the World Wildlife Fund, the International Society for the Protection of Animals and the New York Zoological Society consider that the continued exploitation of the spotted cat species will bring them to the danger level. The Red Book contains only animals which are so severely endangered and with so few remaining that it is already almost too late to save them and they are consequently of no practical value to the clothing trade.

And again: "What they have done is scared the hell out of the public and created an environment which makes it unpopular to buy certain furs".

To refrain from buying a leopard-skin coat is not the act of a "scared" person. It implies either lack of sufficient funds or possession of sufficient good sense to refrain from exploiting rare species.

You say the cause has been taken up by "people concerned with wildlife and by groups of women who have nothing better to do...It happens to be a good committee to work on."

Here we agree with you—a committee of people furthering the conservation of world wildlife is certainly a good committee to work on, and fortunately the number of people concerned with wildlife is growing rapidly.

You say "Canada was weaned on the fur industry. If pressures continue unrestricted they could seriously hurt a multi-million dollar business in Canada".

With the numbers of plentiful fur-bearing animals available, business will not be seriously hurt if the furs of the spotted cats are no longer used—in fact, several large, successful firms have already undertaken not to use them.

You claim: "As far as wild furs are concerned, there's a legal season on hunting and trapping."

Regulations may be enforced in Canada, but in Africa and South American countries poaching accounts for a great percentage of the spotted cat and other skins which find their way out of these countries. For instance, in 1968 the total number of leopard skins that could have been exported locally from Kenya was only 80, whereas some 2,000 skins, the majority of which had been smuggled out of the country, were imported as legal merchandise into the United States.

May we conclude with some quotations of our own.

Mr. William G. Conway of the New York Zoological Society says: "Unfortunately, we do not know how many leopards or jaguars exist, only that their ranges are shrinking daily and that observers almost everywhere are noting the gradual disappearance of these animals."

Thirty of the world's foremost cat biologists, meeting in California last March, unanimously agreed "that the Federal Government (i.e. the U.S.) should back up the efforts of State Governments in banning the importation and sale of skins and products made from the wild cats of any country of the world."

The World Wildlife Fund writes: "It is a fact that 90 per cent of the countries in which these cats occur have outlawed exportation of their skins."

Yours truly,
Wildlife Chairman,
and Labrador.

Hoping that Christmas brings lots of good things for you, yours.

Trees Flourish In Festivities

Of all the customs of the Yuletide, none flourishes more merrily than the Christmas tree. It's a happy holiday tradition to set up a tree, string it with lights, deck it with ornaments and crown it with a star.

Legendary suggestions about the origin of the tree are plentiful. Just about every country has one to offer.

The pine trees of the Roman

Saturnalia, the great tree of Yggdrasil in Norse mythology and the evergreens the Egyptians used to adorn their homes at the winter solstice are but a few of the possibilities.

In Scandinavian mythology, the three roots of Yggdrasil bound together the home of the gods, the land of mankind and the netherworld.

Though where the Yule tree began can't be pinpointed, it first showed up as an accomplished fact in the 16th century. Strasbourg manuscripts of that era describe decorated trees as a regular, established part of the Christmas season.

The custom of the tree was probably brought to the New World by Hessian soldiers fighting for the British in the Revolutionary War.

The chronology of the Christmas tree in America reveals these highlights, as compiled by the editors of Encyclopedia International.

1856 First Christmas tree in the White House introduced by President Franklin Pierce.

1909 People of Pasadena,

Calif. erected a towering tree on Mount Wilson.

1912 Community trees decorated in Madison Square Park, New York City, and on the Common in Boston.

1913 "Children's Christmas Tree" placed in Independence Square, Philadelphia.

1920 Giant deodar cedars create a mile-long panorama of lighted trees, on "Christmas Tree Lane" in Altadena, Calif.

1923 First National Community Christmas Tree inaugurated by President Calvin Coolidge.

1926 National Christmas Tree designated by U.S. Department of Interior. It's a "Sequoia gigantea," or coniferous evergreen, in King's Canyon National Park, Calif.

1933 First Rockefeller Center Christmas tree erected—a 70-foot high Norway spruce with 1,200 colorful lights. Since then, huge Christmas trees—usually Norway spruce—have been a tradition in this New York business-entertainment complex. Tallest ever was a 90-footer, in 1948.

1947 Minneapolis celebrated with a tree made of water-pipes. 135 trees placed in the pipes served as limbs.

1950 A Seattle shopping center set a record for the highest tree, with a 212-footer.

Canadians celebrate with a National Christmas Tree on Parliament Hill in Ottawa.

GREETINGS

Over the fields and through the snow-covered countryside go our warmest Christmas wishes. In this tradition, we greet our friends and customers, with hopes for your holiday happiness, and with genuine appreciation for your good will.

'Greetings' Say It's Christmas

All the merriment, all the magic, all the glory of Christmas comes now to the people of this community, like a wonderful package of gifts they can share and enjoy. The wrappings on the package glow with brightest promise—joyful music in the air, gleaming lights and gala decorations, fun and festivity, trees and greens and all the trimmings for a Christmas just brimming over with the good things and glad times that the season inspires.

Now that the long-awaited moment has arrived, what does this community Christmas package hold? The tag gives a clue. It reads, "Greetings, good will and good wishes—Merry Christmas!"

In the community, in the home, in business and social relations, the true spirit of Christmas begins and grows from greetings.

The greetings may be—as evidenced by this special Christmas Greetings Edition—an expression of good will and gratitude from business people of the community, who are sincere in their desire to impart special appreciation of their patrons' confidence and trust.

But whether it's a cheery "Merry Christmas" to a new acquaintance, a warm exchange of season's best wishes with an old friend or still deeper exchange of felicitations with a loved one, the holiday greeting embodies the guiding spirit of "Peace on earth, good will toward men."

Enchanting as they are, gifts, parties and other such gaieties are but the outer wrappings of the holiday package that means Christmas, with its message of fellowship, friendship and love.

Glad Tidings

May the blessings and spiritual glory of the season be yours.

Roaming The Globe

SEA, SAND, ALL THAT SUN: A winter holiday for probably most people in these parts means getting away from the snow and cold weather into the sun lands near the equator. And the field is wide open. You can drive, ride fly or sail to the sunny south and find warm comfort and fun places in Florida, the other Gulf of Mexico states, California and Mexico. Or you can fly or sail to the islands - the Bahamas, just off the southern tip of Florida, and further down to the West Indies scattered in their curving course around the Caribbean to the coast of South America. Then there's South America itself, where the summer is enjoyed during our winter season, and the South Pacific and Africa and even southern Europe and the Mediterranean.

Wherever you go in those southern climates you'll find sandy beaches, often in quiet secluded places where the sun both keeps the water warm and gives a healthy tan. This is where you can really relax. You can do it on a budget, too, for even in the most expensive resort areas you can find tourist rooms or cottages or villas where bargains can be found. The resorts vary from the quiet to the swinging and your travel agent will help you make your choice. Cruising is a popular way of reaching the sun lands and visiting a lot of them while enjoying the comforts of shipboard living. The field is wide open.

HAWAII HAS DRIVE-IN VOLCANO: Hawaii boasts the world's only "drive-in" volcano. It's in the Puna district of the big island of Hawaii, just over an hour by air from Honolulu. When you motor through this region you can park your car next to the Halemaumau fire pit of Kilauea Volcano and stare down 600 feet where lava lakes boil fiery orange and cinder cones hiss and spout. Or you can stop on a still warm lava flow and light a newspaper by shoving it into crevices. And yet all this with no risk. Even when a volcano like Mauna Loa sends fiery streams of lava down its flank toward the ocean the onlooker is in no danger. In fact such eruptions, when they occur, are the signal for hundreds of sightseers to rush to the island for the spectacle. The inter-island airlines put on special "volcano flights." And some island residents have standing reservations for space whenever this occurs.

Volcanologists say all Hawaii's volcanoes are safe because the lava is soupy enough to let gases escape without building up explosive pressures. At the times of Mauna Loa's eruptions many daily flights to and from the mainland are detoured over the area so that passengers can see the spectacular displays of lava fountains and fiery rivers moving down the slopes. The "drive-in" fire pit of Halemaumau is right next door to the bulk of Mauna Loa. And although this area acts up very nicely for sightseeing purposes there hasn't been an eruption in many scores of years.

At the edge of the area is a famous hotel, the Volcano House, where many of the tours arrange overnight stops. The view windows of the hotel look out across an expanse of steam vents and old lava flows to the fire pit where a plume of smoke rises to the sky and where at periods of greater activity volcanic ash is shot upward. It's cool in tropical Hawaii at this mountain altitude. The hotel burns wood fires in open hearths and the visitor is wise to come supplied with sweaters or coats for night visits to the crater. In travelling through this volcanic region every man becomes his own volcanologist. You learn the names of different types of lava, and facts such as that Mauna Loa has erupted every 3½ years since 1832. In 1942 the volcano was even subversive. Strict wartime blackouts were in effect in Hawaii at that time. Then on April 26 Mauna Loa decided to erupt. The event was censored at the time, but the red glow in the sky from the lava was visible for 200 miles. But no enemy bombers appeared.

TOURISM WORTH $20 MILLION TO P.E.I.: Dr. Lorne Bonnell, Prince Edward Island minister of Tourist Development, has announced island tourism this year has fattened the provincial economy by $20 million. Bonnell compares this with the $12 million-a-year average income from the traditional potato yield of the island in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Bonnell says $7 million will be spent in the next

AURORA, LABRADOR—9 four years in the western section of the Island, including a golf, motel and beach development at Mill River on Malpeque Bay. The ferry service between New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island to the port of Borden reached the millionth passenger mark this season a month ahead of the 1970 date. The ferry service carried 283,000 passengers

BUILDERS AND NORTHERN HOUSING: (Toronto Globe & Mail)—Canadian architects and engineers were challenged by Northern Affairs Minister Jean Chretien to develop new designs, materials and construction methods for northern housing projects. Northern housing solutions in Canada and other circum-polar countries have to date been only southern technology transported to a northern climate, he said at the opening of the International Building Exhibition in Toronto. Some imaginative proposals have been suggested, but none has been tested either because they were unsufficiently developed, because they failed to touch base with local people or because their cost was excessive."

Mr. Chretien admitted that existing housing community layouts and public facilities do not meet the needs of small communities in spite of the Northern Rental Housing Program, initiated in 1965 to provide 1,558 three-bedroom houses in 43 northern settlements by 1973. So far 1,307 of these units have been built and the minister says the federal goal will be met by 1974, but he also noted that adequate solutions do not exist to the problems of providing a supply of running water for these houses, nor are there any sewage disposal facilities in smaller villages. These problems have been reduced in the Soviet Union and Greenland by a trend toward multiple-unit housing, which is easier to service.

Canada will not follow this trend because of basic cultural differences. The Soviet Union has 45 million people living north of the Arctic Circle while Canada has only 55,000 and most of these are native peoples. Canadian native people traditionally live in a one-room dwelling and they also need places to store skins, meat and snowmobiles. Condominiums do not provide this requirement for togetherness and storage space. Mr. Chretien suggests that since no adequate solution has been found for northern housing, the Canadian building industry should use its own technical knowledge combined with the practical experience of Indians and Eskimos to develop a northern dwelling unit.

In addition, southern construction companies will have to use existing northern labor pools for any projects in the north. This is because Eskimos and Indians have been trained as technologists and semi-skilled workers. "The Government will oppose the importing of southern workers where qualified northerners are available—and this applies equally well to government and to industry."

SUPER ICEBREAKER CONCEPT ACCEPTED: (Canadian Press) — The government has accepted a report of the Commons northern development committee that recommended plans for construction of a super icebreaker, Transport Minister Don Jamieson has announced. The report, tabled in the Commons, said Canada should be making plans for a $100 million icebreaker that would be superior to anything now afloat. It would be designed for protecting the Arctic ecology, assisting in northern development and maintaining Canadian sovereignty.

In reply to a question from Paul St. Pierre (L—Coast Chilcotin) in the Commons, Jamieson said the government accepts the recommendations of the report, which he believed are sound, and was in the process of deciding how to proceed on the design of such an icebreaker and related questions.

The committee also recommended that the transport department set up a school for crews of icebreakers, rather than taking people with no experience from manpower offices. Eskimos, it said, should be trained for such work. Jamieson said the crewing recommendations are being examined.

WHO CARES ABOUT SEX? (Financial Post) — A recent Gallup poll revealed an interesting national attitude concerning the ability of women in business affairs. Asked "Do you think women could run most businesses as well as men or not?", 58 per cent of those polled answered "yes," while 35 per cent said "no" and 7 per cent were undecided. Most significantly, a majority of the men polled voted "yes," namely 53 per cent, so this was not just a case of a big women's vote for feminine solidarity. When it came to the nitty-gritty question whether, granted equal ability, women have as good a chance as men to become executives, there was virtually no difference between men and women. Answering "yes" were 42 per cent of the men and 41 per cent of the women, as against 50 per cent men and 52 per cent women in the "no" column.

The report of the Royal Commission on the Status of Women repeatedly makes the point that changed attitudes on the part of society, no less than legislative changes, will be needed if greater equality between men and women is to be attained. Attitudes obviously are changing rapidly, to judge by this Gallup poll. Would a survey taken 50 years ago, or even 20 years, have turned up a result like that?

CBC ANNUAL REPORT: (Canadian Press) — The publicly-owned CBC did more with less people in the year ended last March 31 and its net cost of operating climbed to a record $170,673,547 from $159,124,411 the previous year. The parliamentary grant in both years amounted to $166,000,000. Total expenditure of the corporation climbed to $218,139,300 from $208,033,241 in fiscal 1969-70. Advertising revenue, the corporation's biggest revenue source outside the parliamentary grant, slipped to $45,060,700 from $47,032,605.

The annual report, tabled in the Commons recently, said the revenue loss was all on the television side. Radio revenues increased. An increase in Canadian programming on TV, meaning more untried programs were on the air, plus a general economic slowdown accounted for the slippage, the report said. Cost of getting the television service on the air increased to $127,283,800 from $120,682,200. Average weekly hours of TV programming reached 57 a week on both English and French networks.

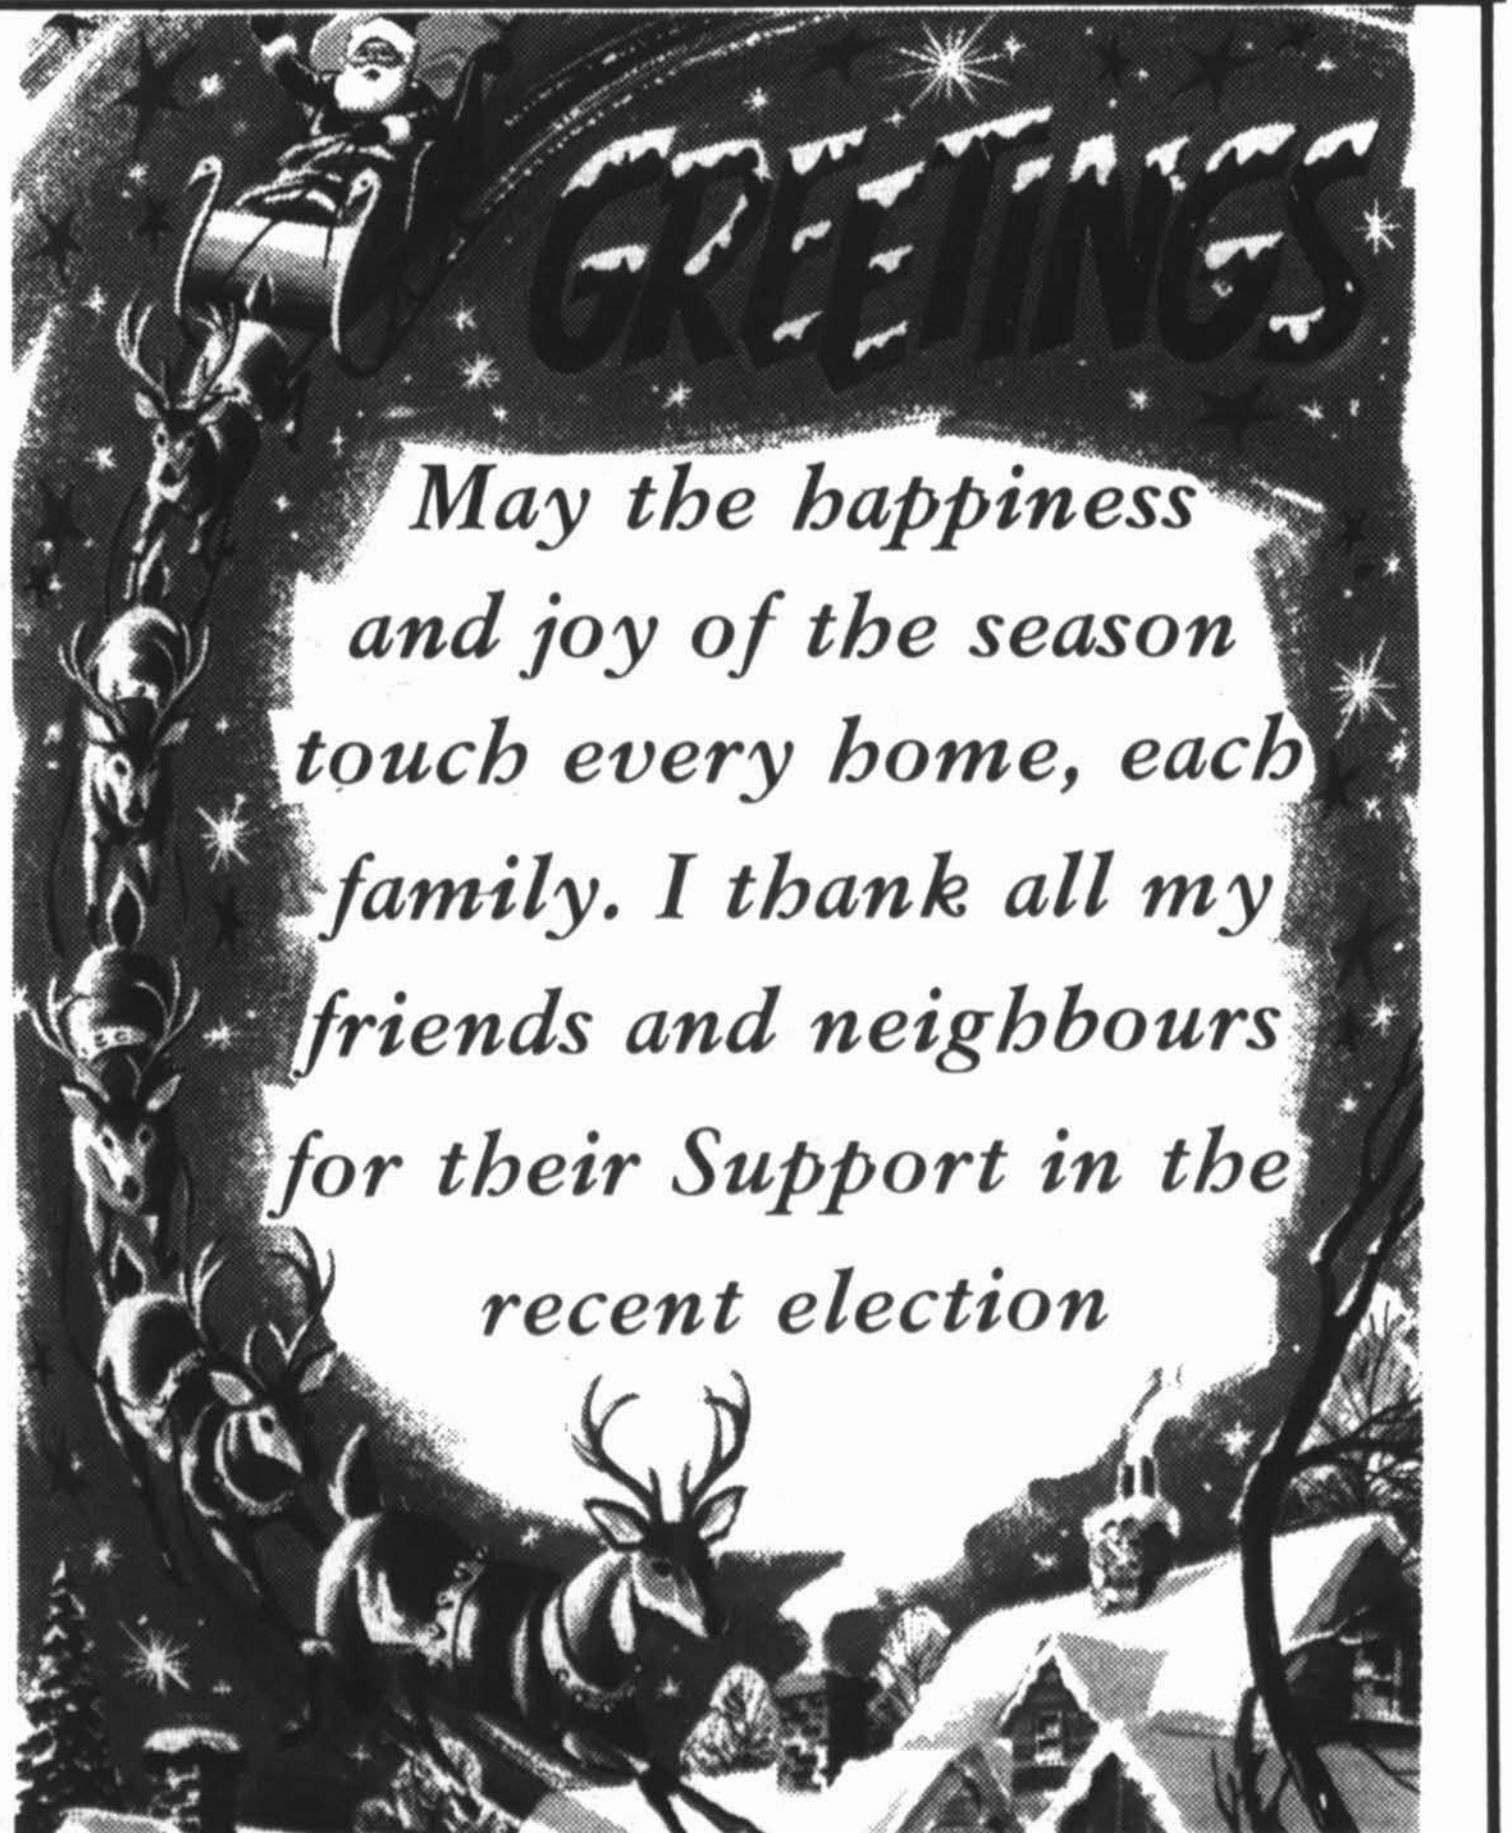

The average was 55 hours a week on the English network and 51 hours on the French network in the previous year. Total staff in 1970-71 was whittled to 8,872 from 8,951 the previous year, mainly by leaving unfilled some jobs left vacant as employees retired or left the corporation. The report said advertising revenues were "unusually high" in 1969-70 and the drop in the current figures would have been more severe except that the corporation changed its sales strategy. It was switching from straight sponsorship, where an advertiser would buy a whole program or a sizeable chunk of one, and providing purchases of time slots scattered over a number of programs.

By March of this year, the report said, there was 66.3 per cent Canadian content on English TV each week, 69.3 per cent in prime evening hours. This compared with 64.5 per cent over-all and 67.8 per cent in prime time in October of last year. The French network was 61.4 per cent over-all and 67.8 per cent over-all and 70.4 per cent in prime time compared with 56.1 per-all and 59.2 per cent prime time in October. English and French radio coverage by the CBC reached 98.6 per cent of all Canadians and TV coverage 96.8 per cent, the report said. There were still more than 300 locations with 500 residents or more "without broadcast service in the appropriate language."

Outside of sports TV programs such as Stanley Cup hockey, which the report said drew more than 5 million audience for one Boston-Chicago game, and the Grey Cup, about 4 million, top programs and average weekly audiences on the English network went to Walt Disney Presents, about 5 million, Rainbow Country, 4 million, The Partridge Family, 3.9 million, and Saturday night hockey games, about 3.7 million. Outside of sports on the French TV network, top draws were Moi et l'Autre, Quelle Famille and Rue des Pignons, each with estimated audiences averaging more than 2-million.

this August, more than double the figure for the whole 1966 season.

The P.E.I. government is countering speculative resort realty purchasing by a broad program of acquiring beach properties and safe-guarding public access to the shoreline. A recent move was to take over 11 miles of beach, below mean low-water level, along the shore of the east end of the Island, earmarked for possible provincial park development and eventually perhaps a component of a second national park.

Bonnell was the recent host of the tourism ministers of the three other Atlantic Provinces at a Brudenall conference. The ministers made preliminary plans for a joint regional approach to tourism promotion, possibly including a joint brochure, joint displays at fairs and exhibitions in potential market areas, and the encouragement of carriers in the development of package tours to the Atlantic region. Also talked about was the possibility of altering the university year's dates so students could participate in an extension of the short tourist season. The short season has to date limited capital investment since there is no rule-of-thumb of tourism operators is that it takes any June activity and all of July to "get off the nut," and sometimes it is well into undependable August before the red ink changes to black.

CRUISE ON A LUXURY YACHT: Another winning package from Miller Tours Ltd., agent: five days on a luxury yacht (once owned by Onassis) and two days on Grand Bahama Island for inclusive price out of Toronto of $249.00 low season, $299.00 high season. Montreal supplement is $20.00. Few extra incidental costs. First departure was last month. Package is sold through travel agents.

FORECASTE HIGH OVER ATLANTIC: When it first placed the Boeing 747 in service on the North Atlantic route, British Overseas Airways Corporation made much of the fact the new, larger aircraft made possible better in-flight service. It has lived up to that pledge, and in either first or economy sections there's little to carp about. First is seldom a problem in any aircraft. The number of passengers in economy on a 747 does create them, but BOAC has handled them with British aplomb. From the boarding at Dorval it is like stepping into a British atmosphere some six or seven hours before the plane itself lands in London. Which is an apt prelude to London, the Tower, Buckingham Palace, Big Ben, the Houses of Parliament, the Thames and all the other world-renowned landmarks.

Indoors, outdoors, all around the house—Christmas is the season for decorating, and what a wealth of decorations there are!

The tree seems to be first the beginning. Its ornaments and lights become continually more varied and delightful.

Wreaths and greens, plants and bouquets, table centerpieces and window adornments appear in the home.

Outdoors, decorations range from a string of lights and a wreath on the door to manger scenes to such creations as Santa, sleigh and reindeer up on the roof-top.

Some of the yard and roof embellishments are real works of art—no wonder communities give prizes for outdoor decorating and lighting.

A diversity of designs for decorating are ready-made, offering welcome help during the bustling holiday season.

Still, it's fun to use personal ingenuity and creativity in making unusual Yule decorations, suggest the editors of the Grolier Universal Encyclopedia.

One thought might appeal to bird-lovers: Place a wreath, ready- or hand-made, outside a window. "Decorate" it with foods tasty to birds, such as peanuts, popcorn, cranberries and bits of suet.

Simple, personal touches make a difference. For instance, greens, ribbons and glittering balls can be attractively arranged on a table or shelf.

Just putting some colorful ornaments and pine cones in a big glass bowl brightens things up.

Set the kids to stringing cranberries and popcorn in the good old-fashioned way.

It's surprising how pleasingly they blend with the modern marvels of tree ornaments.

Every area of the home deserves some holiday accents. How about fastening candy canes to a broad, bright ribbon and draping it around the kitchen bulletin board?

For the more ambitious, there's the kissing bunch, an old English tradition.

An easy way to make one is to buy a ball of plastic foam. Greens—red-berried holly for color, mistletoe for kissing—can be inserted in the foam ball. Then a gala red bow and length of ribbon to hang it by are all that's needed.

Too late for this season? Much of the joy of Christmas is planning for the next one.

Christians Celebrate Holy Day With Prayer and Thanksgiving

For those who celebrate Christmas as a holy day, the holiday is greeted with rejoicing, with prayer and thanksgiving, in church and private devotions.

The word "greeting" has a special significance here, for herald angels singing to shepherds in the fields and a star shining in the heavens truly brought greetings—according to the Revised Standard Version of the Bible, "good news of great joy which will come to all people."

Long before the December 25 birthdate of Christ was celebrated in devotions, it had marked a season set aside for another kind of greeting. In Northern Europe, Teutonic tribes of pagan times greeted the rebirth of the sun, of the winter solstice.

Earliest celebrations of Christmas combined some of the ancient pagan traditions. By association with Christian beliefs, old customs of greeting the sun became symbolic of a recognition—a greeting of faith, hope and life eternal.

The Labor Scene

FIRMS' DIRECTORS FROM LABOR: Frankfurt, Germany — The idea that the employees should have a say in the executive decisions of their company has yet to emerge as a major bargaining point in North American labor relations. Management tends to shudder at the thought. Labor, so far, has shown a curious indifference. Yet if the West German experience is any guide, getting the workers into the boardroom could benefit both groups. In Germany, the right of employees to a voice in the companies management affairs is a century-old concept. Today, in most large German companies, one-third of the firms' governing board must be chosen by the workers. The only remaining argument is over just how much further this worker participation — the Germans call it Mitbestimmung, or codetermination — should extend. The unionists this year are waging a strong fight for more seats.

Industry, while not exactly throwing wide the board room doors, at least freely admits the central virtue of the concept: with participation comes responsibility. When the workers share in executive decisions they must also accept responsibility for the balance sheet, even if that means as it has in some cases, subduing wage demands and rejecting strikes. As one result, codetermination is widely regarded by economists, industrialists and unionists alike as being largely responsible for the country's enviable postwar record of labor peace. In varying degrees, codetermination now exists in all large German firms. In most firms, the supervisory board (Aufsichtsrat) — the senior controlling board in a firm — must have at least one third of its members drawn from the employees. In the iron, steel and coal industries, the proportion is 50 per cent.

A typical board structure in the latter forms would consist of 11 members — 5 chosen by the stockholders, five by the employees, and one, usually a prominent academic or public figure, selected jointly. Now the big unions are aggressively seeking new federal legislation that would extend the full 50 per cent representation to all large companies. "As long as we have fewer board members than management, we're really just a consulting minority," one labor leader comments. Hopefully the unions say, the change could come in the next year. Realistically, they expect little action from the Bonn government until after the next election in 1973, and then only if the labor-sympathetic Social Democrats win a majority. Codetermination, the Unionists say, will be one of the big issues of that election. Many corporate executives agree.

Dr. Rainer Zoll, an official with the two-million-member Metal Workers Union (IG Metal) told FP: "There's a tendency to think of codetermination as occurring whenever there is a labor representative on the board. But we believe real codetermination happens only when 50 percent of the board consists of worker representatives. Codetermination for us equals parity. Until there is parity on the board, union members can be ignored. They can simply be outvoted on every major issue." The unionists also want one member appointed to the management board (Vorstand), which looks after the company's day-to-day operations. This worker representative — in Germany an Arbeitsdirektor — would be concerned with employment conditions within the firm. If Bonn legislates the changes, the full 50 percent representation would extend to about 400 large German companies, including holding companies.

Resistance among senior management to full codetermination obviously exists, but is not as strong as one would expect. A.E. Webber, chief financial officer for Alcan Aluminiumwerke GMBH, Frankfurt, said: "I think most businessmen accept the fact that equal worker representation on the board is inevitable. Few people may want it, but at least it has some benefits. Our own experience has been that, through codetermination, the unions acquire a strong sense of responsibility toward the company's financial health. They understand quickly that when the company does well, then so do they. And if they have to sit on the board and make some of those tough decisions, they gain a much better appreciation of just how hard it is to make money."

Art Spreads Story Of His Birth

The Nativity scene has always stimulated and challenged painters and sculptors.

In turn, great works of art depicting the story of the birth of Christ have, through the years, enriched the lives and enhanced the spiritual insights of millions.

Earliest Christian art was simple and graphic, as clear and easy to appreciate as a comic strip.

Later, religious paintings became stilted.

Then, Italian Renaissance painters instilled renewed warmth and humanity into art, renewing, too, individual art appreciation, through their natural, lifelike creations.

Their work gained much from the stimulus of the changing times and the new approach to art, fostered by the support of the Medici and commissions for paintings and sculpture from the church.

For instance, Raphael, famous for the "Sistine Madonna," came to Rome from Florence to do a fresco decoration in the Vatican at the same time that Michelangelo was painting the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel.

Artists from other countries, too, traveled to Italy, there to experience and be influenced by Renaissance thought and feeling.

The Labor scene

Germany's largest company — volkswagenwerk AG — this year became the prime union target for full codetermination. While the company is fighting the move, VW economists freely point to codetermination as one of the most important reasons behind their company's reputation — and Germany's — for labor peace. Last year, a government commission investigating the effect of codetermination in the iron, coal and steel industries came to a similar conclusion. In its study, the commission found that worker representatives were generally of high professional calibre, were properly elected and, despite earlier factors that bloc "capital — vs — labor" voting would occur, found little evidence of either side lining up against the other. Nor did equality lead to outrageous employee demands, as had been feared.

Codetermination was first written into the German constitution in 1849. Legislation passed in 1864 made it a reality by guaranteeing German workers a voice in setting factory conditions and holidays. A 1920 law gave employees a seat in the top board. Adolph Hitler suspended the practice, but during the allied occupation and reconstruction period after the war, workers were again appointed to the board. Just how quickly the unions will achieve full 50 percent representation in all industries, no one can predict with certainty. There is some evidence of growing labor militancy — if it can be called that in Germany — and some industries have been hit with high wage settlements. The immediate effect has been to strain labor-management relations somewhat.

Dr. Zoll of IG Metal says that some 500,000 workers took part in short term strikes while negotiations were still under way last-year — a new experience for Germany. But spontaneous wildcat strikes are still relatively rare. Some 156,000 workers took part in these last year, at a time when contracts weren't up for negotiation. Undoubtedly, a good part of the labor aggressiveness is attributable to the current employment situation in the country. With some two million foreign workers, Germany is still in an over-employment situation, with jobs chasing the people. What this means to the union efforts to gain parity in the board rooms, Dr. Zoll is unsure. Increased tension between labor and management could lead to a hardening of resistance to codetermination. But if militancy becomes a factor in Germany, management may be more than willing to get more workers on the board, thereby making them more responsible for the firm's financial health.

BETHLEM STEEL: About 1,800 employees at the Bethlem Steel Co. plant at Lackawanna, N.Y., have been laid off. A spokesman for the employees union, Local 2604, United Steel Workers of America, said he employees were sent home because the union refused to go along with a company plan to eliminate about 260 jobs.

Manger Scenes Inspire Rejoicing

Creche, Christmas crib, manger scene, crib of Bethany, praesepe—in many countries, the representation of the Nativity through figures from miniature to lifesize goes by many names.

Under any name, the re-creation of the manger springs from one guiding, and abiding, purpose—bringing people closer to Christmas. The highest wonder of the Christmas story is its sheer simplicity and reality.

A Child, the Son of God, born in a manger on a starry, silent night is a concept all can comprehend because of its closeness to human experience.

Anyone who watches a child before a manger scene this Christmas will readily see, in the child's awe and enthusiasm, that re-creating the Miracle of Christ's birth is an exalting experience.

Begins in Italy

Christmas belongs to the people. So thought St. Francis of Assisi.

His way of helping his Italian parishioners grow closer to Christmas was to create the very first praesepe, or Christmas crib.

His carol, "The Song of the Creatures," made the Nativity still more real to them since it told of the lowly animals which were part of their lives and livelihood.

All this happened early in the 13th century. From that time, the idea of the creche or crib has spread to virtually every country on the globe.

Today, especially in Latin America and Europe, the manger scene sets the theme for a holy and happy Christmastide.

Told in Rhyme

The story of the Nativity and its meaning for mankind is a favored poetic theme, as is the holiday cheer of hearth and home.

Poets as diverse as William Shakespeare, Samuel Taylor Coleridge, John Greenleaf Whittier and T. S. Eliot have made their contributions.

Numerous carols first were poems—witness Henry Wadsworth Longfellow's "I Heard the Bells on Christmas Day":

SINCE DAYS OF OLD, REPLICAS OF THE MANGER scene have helped to bring mankind closer to the meaning of Christmas. The crib or creche here is typical, in its presentation of Mary, Joseph and the Infant Jesus, with the shepherds and Wise Men and, of course, the animals of the manger. It's typical, too, of the way the Nativity and the events surrounding it have long inspired artists and craftsmen, musicians and singers, poets and writers.

*"I heard the bells on Christmas Day
Their old, familiar carols play,
And wild and sweet the words repeat,*

'God is not dead, nor doth He sleep.'"
Probably the overwhelming winner among widely-known secular Christmas poems is Clement Clark

Moore's "A Visit from St. Nicholas."
The poem, written for his own children in 1822, is popularly called, "Twas the Night before Christmas."

SKIING WITH Al Paine

Alpine Director, Canadian National Ski Team.

IV—Beginners DANGEROUS FALLS

Falling is an inevitable part of learning to ski, so learning how to fall is important to the beginner. Some falls are much more dangerous than others. The best way to fall is to the side holding your skis together, so that they remain parallel during the fall.

You should be relaxed, however, not too relaxed. Any fall where you go frontwards over the tips of your skis is dangerous. If this happens try to throw your weight sideways to come out of it.

Beginners will often fall, relax and then let themselves continue to fall, especially if the fall is backwards and of the somersault nature. This is where it is important not to be too relaxed as it is very easy to catch a tip and have the ski apply too much pressure to the leg. Again, try to throw yourself sideways to prevent this.

The third type of relatively dangerous falls is where the skis spread-eagle and your weight goes forward between them. This is dangerous even at slow speeds and you must try to jump out of it.

Steering into a great Christmas season we extend best wishes to all our friends and neighbors with a sincere thank you for your confidence and loyalty.

Songs of Season Carrying Merry, Modern Message

As families and friends gather to sing carols, as carolers roam from home to home, as happy notes ring out in church services and other gatherings, the familiar and favorite songs of the season celebrate the pure joy of Christmas.

Busy about his holiday tasks, one singer alone might "carol joyfully," just for the gladness of it. The Christmas treasures of heart and spirit are his in fullest measure, for carols belong to people everywhere, and most especially to every individual.

Carols are simple and sincere, merry and joyful, usually religious and sometimes secular. Some carols are ancient indeed and some are of today. But whatever a carol's age or origin, one thing is always true.

All carols are modern. Their spirit is that of the first of all Christmas songs, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men," sung by an angelic chorus.

Their message, like the age-old Christmas story, is as fresh and new as tomorrow.

Hymns Were Latin

By its very character, a carol brings "Glad tidings of great joy" or, to put it more simply, "Good news." The French carols known as "Noels" express this with the use of the word "Noel" or "Nowell" as a refrain—and "Nowell" means "news."

Scholar's Latin was the language of the first Christmas hymns, the forerunners of present-day carols.

Typical of those ancient hymns is a leaf from an illuminated manuscript, now in the Library of The Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York City.

The leaf features a dramatic initial letter, illustrating the Nativity scene and "illuminated" by touches of gold. It's the work of an unknown 15th-century Italian artist.

The hymn celebrates the birth of Christ, Son of God and Saviour of Man. Its source is an Antiphony, or collection of antiphons—songs to be sung in response or in alternate parts.

Though the Latin words may look complicated to a nonscholarly eye, the music is simplicity itself—notes for a basic melody.

Simple as it is, this hymn comes from an era which saw the beginning of greater complexity in music. Toward the end of the 15th century, church music became not only a religious inspiration but a moving force in musical development.

Rhythms became more complex, and counterpoint began to evolve.

Changes took place in the language of Christmas song, too, for Latin was no longer a language understood by all.

The solution? "Macaronic" carols, which may suggest something to eat—but "macaroni" adds a "c" to become "macaronic" and gain a new meaning—"in two languages."

Macaronic carols combined Latin with a language that the common people understood.

Dancing with Joy

A Christmas carol might also be a Christmas dance.

Origin of the word "carol" itself seems to trace back to the French word, "caroler" meaning to dance, and carols of yesteryear may have been sung by carolers dancing in a circle.

Full of rejoicing, the carols we sing today literally dance with holiday merriment.

Singing "Wassail"

Traditionally, carols go with the feasting and toasting that are part of holiday cheer, for a "wassail bowl" is any festive beverage, and a "wassail" is also a carol.

The "wassail" was one of the earlier forms of English carol—named, probably, for the Anglo-Saxon "weshal," translated as "to be hale or hearty."

It's Entertainment

That carols have always been popular music, in the modern sense, is illustrated by the mystery plays of medieval England, say the editors of the New Book of Knowledge.

At first, carols were sung between the acts, just as music might be provided during intermission, at a play or movie.

Soon, people demanded more. In response to their enthusiasm, carols were sung on stage, as part of the entertainment.

The leader had a portable organ and led the singers in a procession across the stage. Swept away by the spirit of the carols, the audience sometimes joined in, and the procession moved into the streets, singing.

And today, that same enthusiasm leads people everywhere to join in the singing of beloved carols.

PROOF OF PUDDING?

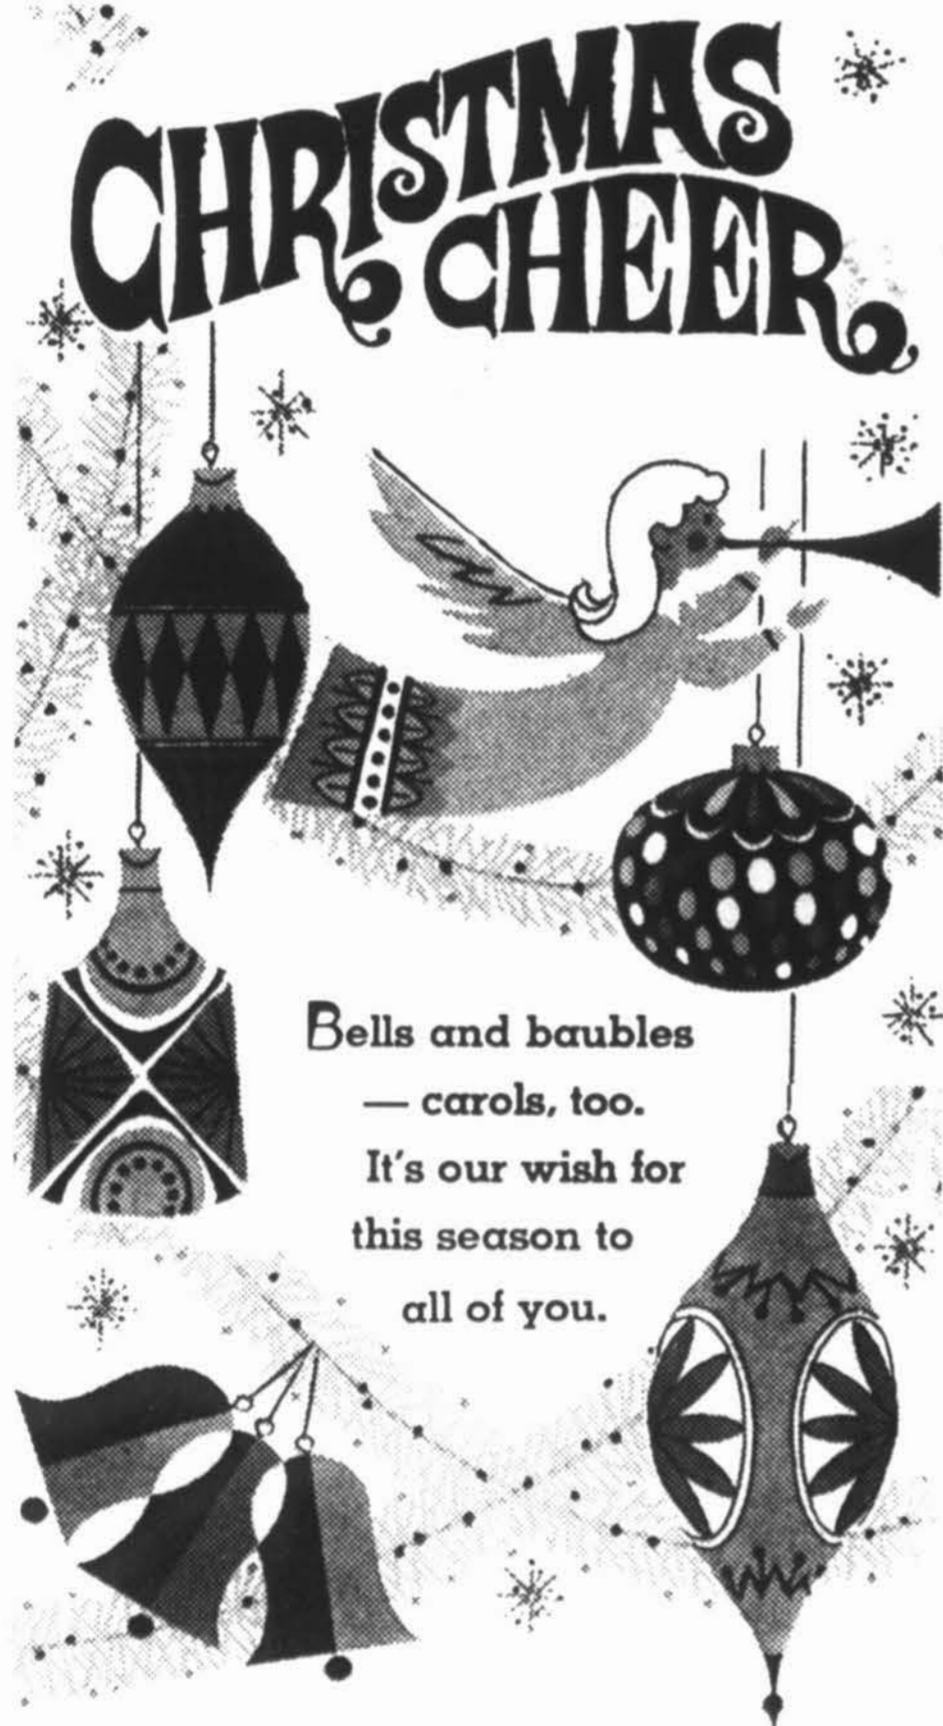

In European countries, finding an almond in the holiday pudding means marriage next year.

Nativity inspires music

In serious music as well as popular carols, the Nativity scene lives on.

Handel's "Messiah," Bach's "Christmas Oratorio," Berlioz' "L'Enfance du Christ" are noteworthy examples of music performed year after year at Christmas.

More recently, Britten's "Ceremony of Carols," Honnegger's "Christmas Cantata" and Menotti's "Amahl and the Night Visitors" have joined the holiday medley of musical treatments.

Bells and baubles

It's our wish for

CURLING

The appointment of Bill Piercey one of Newfoundland's better known curlers, as Chairman for Accommodations on the 1972 St. John's Brier Committee has been announced by general chairman Alex Henley.

One of the most "colourful and popular figures in the local game", Mr. Piercey has won national acclaim for good sportsmanship and as a goodwill ambassador for Newfoundland at previous Briers. Mr. Henley said that his experience will be a great asset to the committee in planning for the Canadian Curling Championships for the Macdonald's Brier Tankard to be held in St. John's March 6-10, 1972.

Mr. Piercey's committee will arrange hotel accommodations for the visiting teams, produce souvenirs pins and badges, and arrange for decorations and protocol.

Bill Piercey is a Life Insurance Agent with the Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada in St. John's. He started his Curling career in Corner Brook in 1953 and since that time has added to his collection of trophies a variety of personal achievements.

He was a member of Bud Fisher's Championship team that represented Newfoundland at the Dominion Finals "The Brier" at Kingston, Ontario 1957 - at Victoria B.C. in 1958 and again at Quebec City 1959. Bill then got transferred from Corner Brook to St. John's in 1960 where he endeavoured to form a winning rink at the St. John's Curling Club but it was not until 1966 did he get a winning combination good enough to represent Newfoundland at the First Canadian Winter Games in Quebec City. Then in 1968 he skipped the Newfoundland entry at Kelowna, B.C. in the Brier and again at Oshawa, Ontario in 1969. His biggest and most cherished achievement was awarded to him at the conclusion of the 1969 Oshawa Brier when he was presented with the Ross Harstone

Award which is presented to the player showing the most exemplary conduct and good sportsmanship on and off the ice. Bill is currently serving his second term as president of the Newfoundland Curling Association having served several years as an officer in that association and on the executive of the St. John's Curling Club.

By Any Name, Santa Always Pleases Children, Guards Fortunes of Many Adults, Too

When what's-his-name arrives in town, everyone is glad to see him.

Who's that again? Oh, Santa Claus, of course. Or he could be—depending on where he is—St. Nick, Pere Noel, Father Christmas, St. Nicholas, Kris Kringle.

Washington Irving called him Father Knickerbocker. To Russians, he's Grandfather Frost.

This magical man of many names not only brings gifts, he also has a lot of special gifts and powers, according to the lore of Christmas.

71-MAT PAGE 28

Santa inherits his powers from St. Nicholas, a fourth century bishop.

Consequently, he's said to be gifted at guarding the fortunes of children, merchants and sailors. He takes a special interest in helping single girls find husbands, and the earliest pawnbrokers called him their patron.

Holiday is favorite theme for writers

Whenever the talk turns to Christmas books and stories, somebody's sure to mention Charles Dickens.

His "Christmas Carol," published in 1843, is synonymous with holiday conviviality, and its underlying theme stresses the spiritual truths and blessings of the Nativity.

"God bless us, every one," cried Tiny Tim Cratchit, and the cry still echoes.

While Dickens may be a word for Christmas, many another author has written of this religious festival and merry feast.

Among the best known examples may be scenes from children's literature.

Louisa May Alcott's "Little Women," published 1868, may seem old-fashioned in some ways, but girls today still rejoice in the story of Meg, Jo, Beth and Amy.

These fictional heroines come to life for their readers, and never more so than in the Christmas-season story that opens the book, when the March family gave up a festive breakfast for a poor family.

While they breakfasted on bread and milk, the girls felt they truly feasted, for they knew the joy of sharing.

Another old favorite is Kate Douglas Wiggin's "The Birds' Christmas Carol," of 1887.

Though better known as the author of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," she wrote this brief but touching story of the Birds' invalid child, whose short life exemplified the principles of Christmas.

In the present day, the American author Truman Capote, who claims the invention of a new literary form, the non-fiction novel, has written of Christmas, too.

His "A Christmas Memory," a short story, appeared as a television drama in 1966.

HUMAN RIGHTS DAY
DECEMBER 10TH

The spirit of the concept of Human Rights could be put into words as follows:

The God given right to each individual of self-expression, and the freedom to follow his own pursuits, as long as this does not infringe upon the rights of others. To make this a reality, on this earthly plain, society must provide the proper environment which includes: freedom from discrimination; the means for each individual to achieve and realize his own potential; and fair treatment, equal opportunity, and justice for all.

You and I are the ones who make up society. No matter how much legislation is passed, the concept of Human Rights will not be realized if we do not believe in it, and will not support it completely, not only for ourselves, but for everyone.

Let us consider this reality: There is one race, the Human Race. Is everyone in our community and in our country assured of his God given rights irrespective of skin color, nationality, or culture? Remember, we are virtually all relatives and can trace our ancestry back to the same original parents.

Let us consider another reality; There is only one Religion, the Religion of the one God, whom we all worship together according to our own fashion. Does our society, which mans you and me, regard all people as equal in the eyes of God and treat them accordingly. We are all spiritual children of the one Father God. How are we behaving towards our brothers?

Let us consider one more reality: "The world is one country and mankind is its citizens". This is becoming more evident day by day. The concept Human Rights can benefit you and me (Baha'u'llah) only if it is put into practice and extended to protect the rights of every individual in the world. THE Human Race is like a human body. As long as one member suffers, the whole body suffers.

"God grant that the light of unity may envelop the whole earth, and that the seal 'The Kingdom is God's may be stamped upon the brow of all its peoples.'"

(Baha'u'llah)

Brothers and sisters of Labrador City and Wabush, and we are brothers and sisters, let us endeavour, day by day, by our efforts and our attitudes, to make this prayer a reality. Knowledge will set us free and love will let us be.

QUIET BUS: A Swedish company has successfully reduced the noise level of the city bus, making it run as silently as most private cars. The low noise level has been reached through sound-insulating enclosures of the engine compartment at the rear of the bus and changed design of the cooling equipment. The coach is available in three models - for scheduled routes, for short-haul operations, and for use as a full-scale tourist coach.

GO TO CHURCH: One way you can help beat the odds against a heart attack: go to church every day. A five-year study conducted at Tel Aviv University Medical School among more than 9,000 civil servants aged 45 to 60 revealed that practising members of the Jewish faith who went to synagogue every day had a much lower incidence of myocardial infarction than those who did not. Among 2,084 people classified as "religious" (that is, going to synagogue every day), only 68 had myocardial infarctions, compared to 113 infarctions among 3,326 "traditional" people (occasional synagogue-goers maintaining outward forms of religious customs) and 198 infarctions among 3,689 people classed as nonreligious (hardly ever attending synagogue.)

Twinkling on trees, glowing from windows, glittering everywhere, Christmas lights reflect, today, the candles of an earlier time.

A candle in the window can light the Christ Child on his way, says Irish legend.

Nativity scenes in homes and churches depict the animals of the Manger—and on Christmas Eve, the cattle, the sheep and all the animals present at the Nativity are given the gift of speech.

Blossoming on the holiday scene, greens and flowers spread their beauty and fragrance, reminding all of the living wonder of Christmas.

Suggested Scripture Reading:
Luke 2: 1-20

And it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus, that all the world should be taxed. Luke: 2:1.

Christmas time is here again! It is a time to be touched afresh by the Holy Spirit the festive season more precious for the one whose birth we commemorate. Christ, God's gift, is intended to be the Guide, Guardian, and Constant Companion of our every waking hour. Because of this we must ask ourselves, "What does His birth mean to us?"

We answer by reading the account in the Bible and comparing our own relationship to the event. Then we look at the world and analyze the affect of the event on present activities. How much true Christianity do we see practiced?

Let us consider the matter in the light of the Sacred Record by observing the circumstances surrounding the birth of Jesus. The circumstances were certainly unusual. A virgin was found with child by the Holy Ghost. His name, character, life, work, death and reign had been stated in prophecy.

The unconscious obedience to the will of God by several persons is noteworthy. Wordly minded Caesar Augustus ordered a polltax. This brought circumstances into line with God's will. It meant that Joseph and Mary, to obey the king's injunction, took a long journey to pay their tax in their home town. A greater purpose was thus accomplished for Jesus was then born in Bethlehem and not Nazareth. The decree was given, the journey was taken, and the will of God was fulfilled.

The fact of His birth needs to be stated in our day. He was born God's son, humanity's man. He was heaven's representative, and earth's Redeemer. He lived as God, and died for men.

The angel's proclamation, yet recorded by men, was a unique aspect of this birth. The angel told the joyful tidings to the shepherds in the fields; the host on high followed with a burst of heavenly song. A star became the first guided missile by leading the wise men from afar to pay homage to the Son of God. The Gospel account gives plentiful witness to the event. The humiliation of the Son of God is the sign of His majesty and the depth of His lowliness and the height of His Glory.

The unique event was concealed from the eyes of the curious and unsympathetic world by the manner of His coming. The birth was known only to whom the Lord revealed it. Born of a virgin in a lowly cattle stall He was wrapped in swaddling clothes and laid in a manger. It was the sign of the shepherds. Then He was the Lamb of God and they were the first to know, to see, and to worship at His feet.

Here was the symbol, lying in a manger, a place where the cattle fed. He was to be the bread that God sent down from heaven to feed the souls of men. Here was the signet, or seal, of all prophecy up to that moment. Prophecy is never so right as when it is fulfilled in the sight of God and men. Every last detail came about exactly as the prophets had spoken. His birth became the signal for all to begin the work of telling this joyful news: "Unto you is born this day, in the city of David, a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord." Have you received the news and believed in Him as your very own Saviour? If so, then to you Christ is Christmas.

NAPE announcement

The Newfoundland Association of Public Employees (NAPE) strongly condemns the action of the Government of Newfoundland and Labrador in the appointment of a former Liberal 'back-bencher', Mr. Walter Hodder, to a senior position with the Civil Service.

To state that Mr. Hodder was the only qualified applicant is going from the sublime to the ridiculous.

That the position had been advertised in July but not filled is slightly hard to digest. It sounds very peculiar that a position can be open for five months and remain unfilled, until all of a sudden, a little over a month after elections a supposedly qualified 'backbencher' comes forward meeting all the necessary requirements. The Association is aware that there were many civil servants, with many years service who applied for this position. The Association is also aware that there are many senior positions vacant in a number of Government departments. We hope that the trend set by the Department of Social Services and Rehabilitation will not be followed by the other areas of Government.

There were quite a number of Liberal 'back-benchers' and Ministers defeated in the past election, 16 to be exact. If the genuine Government employee has to stand idly by and watch a position he has applied for, is qualified for, and worked hard for, filled by these defeated Liberal candidates, then we will have reached an all-time low in the eyes of the western world.

Hopefully this will not happen. There will have to be a house cleaning when and if the new Government comes into power, and the chaos that will result is bound to reflect on the dedicated civil servant.

The Civil Service would not be painted with providing support to any political party, but rather to be loyal to the people of Newfoundland whom they are paid to serve.

Sincerely,
John F. Peddle
Acting General Manager

TARGET TAXI LIMITED

Nfld. wants federal government to continue collect income tax

Premier Smallwood issued the following statement from his office today:

"The Government of Newfoundland and Labrador have notified the Honourable E. J. Benson, Minister of Finance (Canada) that it wishes to have the Government of Canada continue to collect personal and corporation income taxes on behalf of this Province in the new year.

"As a change is to be made in Federal legislation concerning the calculation of income tax liability, a similar change will have to be made in our Income Tax Act when our Legislature next meets. A nominal change in the method of quoting the rate of our personal income tax will also be necessary. The required technical adjustment substitutes a rate of 36.0 per cent of the proposed Federal tax instead of a rate quoted as 33 per cent of "basic tax" as now defined in Federal tax legislation. This technical adjustment in the method of quoting the tax rate will not result in a higher level of Provincial income tax and will not increase Provincial Government revenues from this source. The adjustment is necessary solely to maintain the status quo.

"A copy of the notification given to the Honourable E. J. Benson in accordance with the terms of the Federal-Provincial Tax Collection Agreement is attached."

Honourable E. J. Benson, Minister of Finance, Government of Canada.

My dear Minister:

I understand that legislation presently before Parliament to implement your proposals for tax reform will modify the base upon which the individual income tax of this Province is levied. To receive the same amount of revenue, provinces will need to express their new tax on the smaller base at rates slightly above present rates. I understand from the statement which you made at our Finance Ministers Meeting on November 2 that this technical adjustment will not result in a higher level of provincial taxes.

The precise adjustment required, according to the information which you have supplied, is to move from a rate of 33 per cent of basic tax under the present system to a rate of 36.0 per cent of Federal tax on the proposed system.

The Province of Newfoundland has been pleased with the tax collection arrangements which have been maintained with the Federal Government in the past. We wish to have these arrangements continued in the future. I wish, therefore, to give formal notification at this time that is the desire of my Government to have the Federal Government collect our individual income tax at the rate of 36.0 per cent of Federal Tax based on the proposed tax system, with effect from January 1, 1972.

Yours sincerely,
F. W. Rowe,
Minister of Finance

The Lighter Side

THAT'S THE TROUBLE: George had been married to lovely Emily for less than a year and already he was beginning to suspect she was untrue to him. Forced to leave town for the weekend on a business trip George explained the problem to his close friend, Walter, and asked him to keep an eye on his wife while he was away. Upon his return George demanded a complete account of Emily's activities.

"Well," Walter said, "the night you left, a good-looking guy came over to the house. Emily got all dressed up and they went out of a night club. I followed them and saw them drinking together and dancing very closely. Finally around three in the morning, they got into a cab and I could see them hugging and kissing in the back seat. I followed them back to your house and watched through the living room window while they mixed more drinks and hugged and kissed each other some more. Then they went into the bedroom and they switched out the lights, so I couldn't see anymore."

"That's the trouble," exclaimed George, "Always that element of doubt!"

THE WRECK: A woman came to the door of the vicarage, and, stumbling between the terms "rectory" and "vicarage," said: "Excuse me, is this the wreckage?"

"Yes," said the vicar's wife, "and I'm the wreck."

BITTER BREW: The district attorney was cross-examining the murderess.

"And after you had poisoned the coffee and your husband sat at the breakfast table partaking of the fatal dosage, didn't you feel any qualms? Didn't you feel the slightest pity for him, knowing he was about to die and was wholly unconscious of it? As you sat there didn't you feel for him at all?"

"Yes," she answered. "There was just one moment when I sort of felt sorry for him."

"When was that?"

"When he asked for the second cup."

TIME, GENTLEMEN: Two kids were discussing how tough their neighbourhoods were. One said: "My neighbourhood is so tough that nobody ever asks you what time it is. They just take your watch."

SAFECRACKERS: In the dark of night two safecrackers entered a bank. One approached the safe, sat down on the floor, took off his shoes and socks, and started to turn the dial with his toes.

"What's the matter?" said his pal. "Let's open this thing and get out of here."

"Naw, it'll only take us a minute longer, and we'll drive those fingerprint experts nuts."

LAST REQUEST: Said the husband with his hand on the TV knob to his wife, "Helen, do you have anything to say before the football season get really hot?"

COP OUT: A frightened householder reported to the police that he's been struck down in the dark outside his back door by an unknown assailant. A young policeman was sent to investigate and soon returned to headquarters with a lump on his face.

"I solved the case," he muttered.

"Amazing fast work," his superior complimented him. "How did you accomplish that?"

The young cop explained. "I stepped on the rake, too."

THE BEST MEDICINE: A young fellow named Clem, was little on the simple side. Feeling nervous, he went to see his doctor. The doctor was out and so he told his troubles to the doctor's sexy looking nurse. She took him into the examination room and made him feel great.

"That's $25," she said.

Clem gladly paid. A few weeks later, feeling up-tight, Clem went to see his doctor. The doctor wrote out a prescription for tranquilizers. "That will be $10," said the doctor.

Sadly looking at the piece of paper, Clem said, "Doc, if it's all the same to you, I'd rather have the $25 treatment."

CAUGHT! The young wife was telling her friend about her impending divorce and what she was going to do after it was settled.

After a while the friend began to argue with her: "But how could a judge possibly give you a divorce because of your husband's flat feet?"

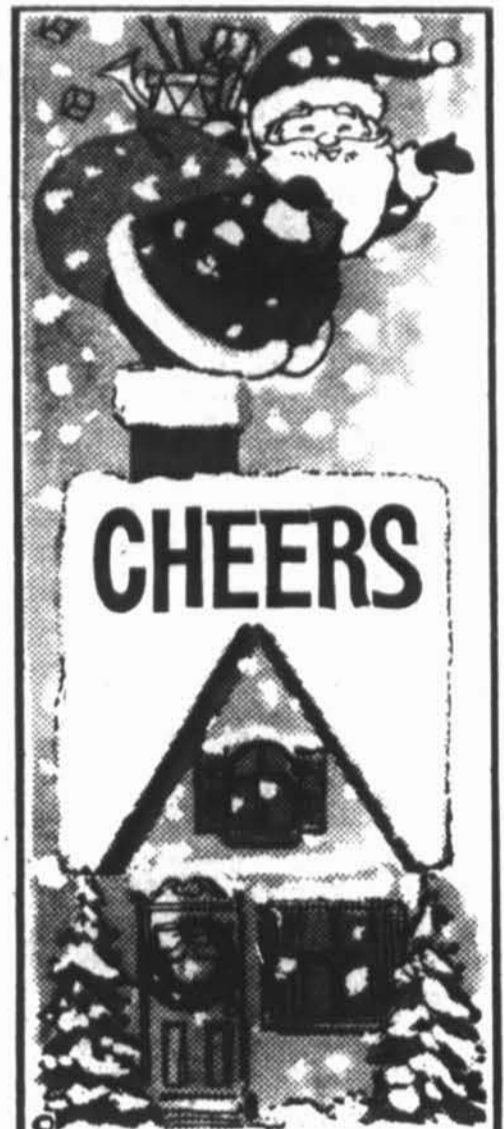

The girl smiled and said: "It just so happened that his feet were in the wrong flat."

NOW HE'S MITT IT: "I hope that since you have come here you have had time to think over what you've done and decided to correct your faults."

"I have," replied the prisoner. "Believe me, the next job I pull, this baby wears gloves."

THE LIVING END:

This is the story of Danny McGuire
 He ran thru town with his pants on fire
 He went to the doctors and fainted with fright
 When the doctor told him his end was in sight.

Intangible Gifts Are Bringing Best Blessings, in Abundance

Among the treasures and pleasures of Christmas, gifts loom large—as all who greet the Yuletide as a season of laughter and a time to be glad of heart well know.

Tangible gifts, large and small, have their place in the holiday scheme of things. They're the outgoing expression of the generous Christmas spirit.

It's the intangible gifts, though, that seem to shine most radiantly, Christmas after Christmas. The delighted smiles of children and the wonder in their eyes, the privilege of aiding the less fortunate, the opportunity to cherish and strengthen friendships and family ties, the renewed spirituality, the solid foundations of health, happiness and love, faith and hope—these are the intangible gifts.

Blessed indeed is the Christmas that brings an abundance of such gifts!

Best Wishes for Christmas
